The Production and Supply of Animals for Military Use

By Major C. L. Scott, Remount Service, Q.M.C.

THE various articles in the press on the subject of the Mounted Service endurance test last fall would indicate that the basic principles of breeding for a National Remount Service were not understood, and that the difficulty of supplying a large number of animals to an army on short notice is not fully appreciated.

The value of the horse and mule in modern warfare is only fully appreciated by those who know that the proportion of animals to soldiers is the same now as in the Civil War. The study of the supply in emergency not only is necessary, but this industry in time of peace also requires attention, particularly because of the fact that of all the essential supplies to an army, the animal takes the greatest time to produce—at least seven years for a mature one that will stand campaign.

When it is realized that the peace time use and demand for horses and mules in our Army is almost insignificant, it can be seen that in emergency we must depend on the commercial supply of the country for the hundreds of thousands that will be needed.

Commercial Types Used

The most vital and encouraging point in this situation is the fact that the best of the commercial types of animals are identical with the type desired for military work. For this reason, we find a very close relation between the Army remount activities of all nations and the commercial breeding activities. Their objectives are identical, i.e., the production of more and better animals and the elimination of worthless scrubs so as to provide in emergency sufficient animals for both the Army and commercial pursuits. Never could the discouragement of any useful breed of animals be justified.

In the study of the various breeds of riding and driving horses in the United States, the most noticeable fact is that the fanciers of the different breeds will usually listen to no talk of other breeds, but are entirely wrapped up in their own particular work. This is only natural, but some even go so far as to deny any good, useful characteristic to other breeds, and to actually oppose them. The most general fund of information is obtained from the horseman who has made his fortune in commercial life by handling all breeds on the basis of a serviceable animal of the proper type, to fill the demand of his customers by giving satisfaction in hard, honest work.

IN THIS article Major Scott explains the basic principles for the production and supply of animals in peace time for military use in an emergency and points out the value of the horse and mule in modern warfare. Major Scott took part in the Mounted Service Endurance test last fall and he here presents his conclusions, as a result of the test, on the various breeds. He believes that all good breeds should be encouraged.

Demand Determines Breed

Admitting that all breeds have their excellent qualities, and also their faults, any breeding scheme for a nation must be and always is, where successful, founded on popular demand. In order to dispose of their animals, breeders must produce the kind that the people of the nation want to use and will buy. That the desires of the users of animals are based on some foundation of practical utility, and that such well bred horses will also be satisfactory in war, is beyond dispute. In encouraging breeding by the distribution of stallions, the Remount Service endeavors to supply the particular breed of sire desired in a community. The popular demand at present shows that the thoroughbred horse is greatly and generally desired and is, therefore, furnished—not in an endeavor to exclude other breeds, but to meet the demand.

The endurance test this year has been used as a basis for argument in favor of the use of one particular breed of sire. Articles have been written to show that the best thoroughbreds in the United States, having been entered in the test, failed to demonstrate the desirable attributes as a sire for riding and utility horses. Such articles, of course, would indicate that the Remount Service was following the wrong course in encouraging the popular demand by supplying this breed of horse.

Mettle Proved in Desert

In the first place, the best of this breed were entirely too costly to obtain to enter in the test, and their owners considered the test of no value or were not interested in the same. Secondly, as an argument in favor of this breed as sires for cavalry and utility horses, I present an extract from "The Desert Mounted Corps" by Col. R. M. Preston, of the British army, who describes the product of this breed of sire in the cavalry campaign in Syria and Palestine.

Page 94.—The majority of the horses in the corps were Walers, and there is no doubt that these hardy Australian horses make the finest cavalry mounts in the world. For many years past the Australians have been buying up the well-bred failures on the English turf, and buying them cheap; not for racing purposes, but to breed saddle horses for up-country stations.

As a result of this policy, they have now got types of compact, well built, saddle and harness horses that no other part of the world can show. Rather on the light side, according to our ideas, but hard as nails, and with beautifully clean legs and feet.

Their record in this war places them far above the cavalry horses of any other nation. The Australians themselves can never understand our partiality for the half-bred, weight-carrying hunter, which looks to them like a cart horse. Their contention has always been that good blood will carry more weight than big bone, and the experience of this war has converted the writer, for one, entirely to their point of view.

It must be remembered that the Australian countrymen are bigger, heavier men than their English brothers. They formed just half the corps, and it is probable that they averaged not far short of twelve stone each stripped. To this weight must be added another nine and a half stone, for saddle, ammunition, sword, rifle, clothes and accoutrements, so that each horse carried a weight of over twenty-one stone (294 lbs.) all day and every day for seventeen days, on less than half the normal ration of forage, and with only one drink in every thirty-six hours!

This writer's statement must bear more weight, coming as it does from an eminent soldier who had thousands of horses to observe under the most arduous field conditions in history, than would a semi-

Weekly Washington Letter

By E. B. Johns, Washington Correspondent

DEVELOPMENTS during the week indicate that the present rate of pay for officers in the Services in grades corresponding to those in the Army below brigadier general will be incorporated in the recommendations of the Wadsworth Joint Congressional Committee to both Houses. There will be, it is said, in addition to the present rates of pay increased allowances of some character for enlisted men in the higher grades or those that correspond to non-commissioned officers.

In the House of Representatives there is a demand for the return to something approximating the 1908 pay for the general officers' grades in all Services. This, it is claimed, should be done for psychological reasons, whatever that means. As a matter of economy, it is insisted that there should be a reduction in the pay of enlisted men of the lower grades or those serving in their first term. This is not to affect those now in the Service. The argument is made that men serving in their first term of enlistment are not worth to the Government their present rate of pay. In addition to saving millions of dollars to the Government, which is the cry of Congress, it is insisted that a larger premium should be placed on promotion among enlisted men.

As the general principles of the bill are being worked out on the House side a saving of millions can be effected without reducing the pay of officers who are referred to as the middle class and enlisted men of the upper class. Congress is impressed with the idea that the efficiency of the Army depends upon regimental and company commissioned officers and non-commissioned officers. They are inclined to apply the same rule to the Navy and to the other Services. Frequent conferences have been participated in by the House members of the Wadsworth committee and the leaders of the House. It is asserted that progress is being made every day in converting the leaders and influential members to this solution of the pay problem of the Services. As it has been outlined to the leaders, it will be in harmony with the reduction of the cost of maintaining the military, naval and other establishments without reducing their efficiency.

Harmonizing Service Differences

After the meeting of the joint Congressional committee on Jan. 5, at which a general survey of the situation was made, Chairman Wadsworth took the bill submitted by Representative McKenzie to the departments and asked that the representatives of the different Services get together and work out the details of a bill along the lines of the tentative measure. He insisted that the Services submit a report to the joint Congressional committee by Jan. 12. Later Chairman Wadsworth consented to postpone the time of making the report until Jan. 14. It was made plain to the authorities at the departments that there was not much prospect of the passage of a resolution continuing even temporarily the present rate of pay. The Services were urged to get together on a bill which would follow the general principles of the McKenzie bill.

Following the suggestion of Chairman Wadsworth, a conference was called at the War Department. Sub-committees were appointed to take up the different provisions of the bill. By dividing up the work the immense task of preparing legislation which would make some very radical changes in the entire character of the pay for the Services was undertaken. Under ordinary circumstances this would be considered a work of months for a board, but by a division of the labor and working night and day rapid progress was made towards harmonizing the differences between the Services and shaping a measure which, it is believed, will meet the different conditions of all the Services.

To begin with, it was recognized that the McKenzie bill was essentially an Army pay bill. Both Chairman Wadsworth and Representative McKenzie are members of the Military Committee and have dealt almost exclusively with Army legislation. Neither of them made any pretensions to attempting to deal with all of the diverse conditions of the other Services. What they ask of the joint committee from the departments is to make suggestions by which the bill submitted by Mr. McKenzie should be modified to meet the conditions in the other Services. They ask the representatives of the departments to work out the general principles of the McKenzie bill in such a manner as to do justice as far as possible to all the Services.

Neither Chairman Wadsworth nor Mr. McKenzie expects to satisfy all of the interests in the different Services. They simply want to go as far in this direction as possible. Unless the representatives of the Services get together, it was explained, the prospects are that Service pay would go back to the 1908 basis.

Section 3 of the McKenzie bill providing for constructive service for the purpose of fixing the pay of officers was the most difficult problem with which the representatives of the Services were called upon to deal. In its present form, it is claimed that it would do a great injustice to a class of officers in the grade of captain. This section, it is stated, has been rewritten several times, and in all probability will be revised a number of more times before it is adopted. Constructive service has always been a subject of animated discussion in the Services and will be one of the most intricate problems to solve during the consideration of the bill.

Attention was called in this connection to officers who would have less actual service than constructive service that would be given to officers who have been recently commissioned. The sub-committee in charge of this section has taken this condition under consideration and is attempting to rewrite it to do justice to this class of officers. Great care is being taken with this subject to avoid the necessity of referring it to the Comptroller General for construction.

Field and Foreign Service

The field and sea service provisions occasioned no end of discussion. The Navy's representatives were very insistent upon extra pay for sea duty, as it was argued that any other arrangement would not only be a hardship to officers who are ordered to sea duty but would put a premium on shore duty.

The proposition for the abolishment of additional pay for foreign service was

Chief of Infantry Gets Army March Reports

The recent policy of the War Department of having various organizations march to their new stations has not only been a great saving in transportation, but valuable information has been secured, pertaining to equipment carried, which has been of great benefit to the Service. Among the reports which have come in to the Office of the Chief of Infantry are those of the 34th Infantry, Col. C. D. Roberts, which marched from Camp Meade, Md., to Madison Barracks, N.Y.; the 3d Infantry, Col. A. W. Bjornstad, which marched from Camp Sherman to Fort Snelling; the 64th Infantry, from Camp Meade, Md., to Plattsburg Barracks, N.Y.; the 54th Infantry, less the 1st and 2d Battalions, from Camp Grant, Ill., to Fort Wayne, Mich., a distance of 390 miles; the 11th Infantry, from Camp Wadsworth, N.C., to Camp Knox, Ky., a distance of 601 miles, and the 6th Infantry, which marched from Camp Jackson, S.C., to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., a distance of 880 miles.

"Magor," "Taylor," "Stein-Burn" and "Liberty" types of rolling kitchens were used on the marches. Some difficulty was experienced by the cooks in keeping fire in the kitchens, due to the jarring of the vehicles, but the reports suggest that if the kitchens were equipped with springs this important difficulty might be overcome.

The ration cart proved most unsatisfactory and was exceptionally hard on the animals. The general opinion of the reports was that the cart should be discarded as part of the field equipment, or designed with a pole or tongue instead of shafts, to be drawn by a two-line team and with four wheels instead of two.

Many adverse criticisms were placed against the design of the water cart used. The axis of the tank was at right angles to the axle, which caused the center of gravity of the tank, except when filled, to vary according to the grade of the road. It is believed that a larger tank mounted on four wheels and drawn by four animals would prove much more satisfactory.

The clothing and equipment of the men generally proved to be satisfactory, but the raincoat was unanimously condemned for men riding wagons. The general complaint is that the coat is not long enough; also that it will not turn water during a heavy rain or for more than an hour under any rainy weather.

Taking everything into consideration, the results obtained from the marches conducted the late summer and into the fall have been very gratifying to the War Department. The morale of the men on all of the marches was excellent.

MAKING THE WARRANT GRADE IN ARMY MORE ATTRACTIVE.

The opinion is expressed at the War Department that in the readjustment of pay now pending in Congress something should be done to make the grade of warrant officer in the Army more attractive, for under the law which forbids the further appointment of Army field clerks the latter grade eventually will disappear from the Army organization. It has been suggested that both the pay and the number of warrant officers be increased and that the Army field clerks be transferred to that grade.

In the matter of pay, Army field clerks have a distinct advantage over warrant officers, the former's pay being $1,200 to $2,000, plus increased compensation of $240 per annum, while that of the latter amounts to $1,320 per annum. Regarding longevity pay and retirement, the advantage lies with the warrant officer grade, as an Army field clerk is not entitled to either. The allowances of these grades are similar, excepting that Army field clerks are not entitled to transportation for dependents on permanent change of station.

The hope is expressed that eventually the warrant grade of the Navy will be used as a basis both as to pay and status of the Army grades and that they will be organized along similar lines. This would furnish an intermediate grade between non-commissioned officers and commissioned officers for experts along technical and administrative lines which would be invaluable in our Army as a dependable corps to which the intricate details of Army mechanics and administration could be entrusted.

WHY RECORDS OF WAR SERVICE ARE NOT COMPLETED BY A.G.

In the annual report of Major Gen. Peter C. Harris, U.S.A., The Adjutant General of the Army, it is frankly stated that owing to lack of funds The Adjutant General's office on June 30, 1921, was compelled to suspend the work upon its huge task of furnishing to The Adjutant General of each state a detailed statement of the military service of every man from that state who served in the Army during the war. Up to that time 4,037,334 statements had been prepared, leaving some 472,000 cases still to be handled, aside from 200,000 cases of men inducted into the Service on or about Nov. 11, 1918.

FIVE SERVICES REPORT ON NEW PAY BILL.

What is no doubt the most comprehensive study of Service pay questions that has ever been prepared was submitted by the five Services to the Wadsworth Committee on Jan. 14. It is the work of the representatives of every corps, bureau and branch of the Services. The report is in the form of suggested amendments to the McKensie bill, with memorandum setting forth the reasons for the proposed amendments.

Accepting urgent suggestions from the members of the Wadsworth Committee, the representatives of the Services have worked out several new systems of pay for enlisted men. The central idea of these is lower pay for men serving in their first term of enlistment, and in the lower grades one plan provides for the payment of $15 per month to men serving in the recruiting period of three or four months.

The proposed systems of pay for recruits and enlisted men in lower grades, it is estimated, will reduce the expenses of maintaining the Services by millions and at the same time make practically the present pay in the commissioned and non-commissioned grades permanent. Finance and Budget officers of the Services are preparing data on the various plans proposed.

While the members of the Joint Congressional Committee have not had an opportunity to study the report, they express themselves as favorably impressed with efforts that had been made by the Services to follow the lines that had been suggested by the committee.

GENERAL OFFICERS, U.S.A., TO NEW ASSIGNMENTS.

Announcement was made by the War Department on Jan. 12 of the following changes in assignment of general officers of the Army. Before Jan. 31 Major Gen. Charles G. Morton, now on duty in the office of the Chief of Staff, will relieve Major Gen. William M. Wright as commander of the 9th Corps Area.

General Wright is assigned to command the Philippine Department and will sail from San Francisco about Feb. 8. He will relieve Major Gen. Francis J. Kenan, who, upon relief, will return to the United States. His assignment has not yet been determined.

ENGINEER TROOPS U.S.A. MAKE EXCELLENT MARCHES.

Among the most notable of marches made recently by Engineer troops incident to changes of station were those of Engineer Training Cos. 1 and 7 and by Co. A, 9th Engineers, mounted. Training Co. No. 1 marched from Camp Humphreys, Va., to Fort Revere, Boston, Mass., a total distance of over 500 miles in thirty days. Counting actual marching time, the company averaged twenty miles a day. Not a single case of sickness occurred and the whole outfit, except the wagon drivers, marched every mile of the way.

Training Co. No. 7 went from Camp Grant, Ill., to Fort Snelling, Minn., a distance of slightly less than 500 miles. In this case excellent results were obtained, and the company averaged twenty miles per day of marching.

Co. A of the 6th Battalion of Mounted Engineers rode as cavalry from Camp Bullis, San Antonio, Texas, to Fort Riley, Kas., a distance of 900 miles. The march was made in forty-five days elapsed time, and the average was twenty-two miles a day. The march discipline was excellent and the troops were cordially treated in all the towns along their route.

DECISION ON CHRISTMAS MENUS WILL BE ANNOUNCED NEXT WEEK.

Mr. Oscar Tschirky, the internationally famous maitre d'hotel of the Waldorf-Astoria, New York city, was still reading the scores of Christmas menus turned over to him by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL when this issue of the JOURNAL went to press. Oscar, as he is known to thousands, simply would not hurry.

"There are so many good menus here and so many of them alike that it will take time to judge them," he said. "I want to be fair to the men in the Services and I am not going to make a snap judgment if you never go to press."

Oscar is right, at that. In order to give each menu the consideration it deserves he must devote considerable time to it. He expects to have the three best from each Service picked out within a few days and they will be announced in the next issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

CHIEF OF FIELD ARTILLERY CONCLUDES INSPECTION TRIP.

Major Gen. W. J. Snow, U.S.A., Chief of Field Artillery, accompanied by Lieut. Col. Augustine McIntyre, U.S.A., returned on Dec. 22 from an inspection trip of the field activities throughout the Middle West. General Snow and Colonel McIntyre visited the General Service Schools at Fort Leavenworth and the posts at Fort Sill and Camp Knox. Conditions of all the posts were found to be very good considering the shortage of enlisted personnel and funds available for carrying out the work.

TO RELIEVE RECLASSIFIED NON-COMS OF PAY STOPPAGE.

The House Committee on Military Affairs reports favorably the bill (H.R. 8475) to relieve enlisted men affected thereby from certain hardship incident to the operation of the proviso of Sec. 4b of the amended National Defense act, and to protect disbursing officers in connection therewith. When the act of June 4, 1920, went into effect, it reclassified enlisted men in the Army into seven grades. It also provided that the salary of the enlisted man should not be reduced during his present enlistment and while he holds his present grade.

The Comptroller of the Treasury made several decisions in construing the law. As a result of these decisions the non-commissioned officers received more pay than the later decision of the Comptroller warranted. An order was therefore issued that these enlisted men should return to the Treasury the amount overpaid them. Some of the non-coms. did so, but a large number contended that they could not make repayments, because they had in good faith used the money for the support of their families. The Secretary of War therefore asks for the legislation embodied in this bill, to relieve such non-com. officers from the repayment, of any excess they received, to the Government, and to relieve the disbursing officers for having made such overpayments.

ARGUMENTS FOR PAY INCREASE FROM SECOND CORPS AREA.

Statistics prepared at Governors Island showing that the United States Army officer spends more to live and enjoys fewer comforts than do officers of any other army in the world will be presented to Congress shortly in argument for better pay provisions for the Services. The claim is made that less than two per cent. of the married lieutenants are able to afford a maid, that less than one-half of the captains employ domestic help, and that not until a man reaches the rank of major does his income permit him to have the comforts usually enjoyed by men of professional education in civil life. Other items include the cost of clothing, costs of food, changes of station and other expenses incident to an Army career.

GENERAL MACARTHUR, U.S.A., TO GET A FOREIGN POST.

Brig. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, U.S.A., will be relieved as Superintendent of the U.S.M.A. at the close of the scholastic year next June and will be ordered to assume command of one of the foreign posts. General Pershing has written General MacArthur a letter in which he explained that the Superintendent has the least foreign service among the general officers of the Army. As a consequence the policy of the War Department made it necessary to order General MacArthur to some foreign command.

During his administration General MacArthur has endeavored to conduct a policy which would meet some of the criticisms that have been directed against the Academy on the floor of Congress and he has conducted the affairs of the Academy on broad and efficient lines.

Athletic sports also, under his administration, have been broadened and diversified, so that every cadet would have an opportunity to make himself efficient in at least one game.

Although no successor has been selected to relieve General MacArthur, the name of Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, U.S.A., is being mentioned in connection with the prospective vacancy.

FOUR TABLETS TO ERICSSON TO BE UNVEILED IN NEW YORK.

Four tablets to Capt. John Ericsson and his partner, Cornelius H. Delamater, will be unveiled in this city on March 9, 1922, the sixtieth anniversary of the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimack.

The ceremonies are in charge of the Delamater-Ericsson Tablet Committee, representing some twenty technical societies and civic organizations, marine and industrial corporations and private individuals. Mr. Delamater, who was an iron works proprietor, was associated with Ericsson for fifty years, from 1839 to 1890. The Delamater Iron Works are now no longer in existence.

One of the tablets is to be unveiled at the Phoenix Foundry, 260 West street, where the first iron boats in this country were built and the screw propeller was first introduced on river and ocean steamers.

Another tablet will be unveiled at the site of the Delamater Iron Works at the foot of West 13th street, where the first self-propelled torpedo, the first torpedo boat, the first submarine boat and the engines for the original Monitor were built.

A third tablet will be unveiled at the Continental Iron Works, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, where the hull of the original Monitor was built and other monitors were constructed.

The fourth tablet will be erected at No. 36 Beach street, where Ericsson lived and died.

Boundaries of Japan Naval Treaty Obstacle

Instead of being accepted with a rush, the naval treaty, so carefully and elaborately framed by the drafting committee of the Arms Conference, is being threshed all over by the heads of delegations. The difficulty appears to be with the question of fortifications.

It will be remembered that the delegations agreed that there should be no increase of fortifications or naval bases in the Pacific except for the Hawaiian Islands, Australia, New Zealand and the islands composing Japan proper.

Those who assay the Japanese as the shrewdest people that ever practiced diplomacy think that Nippon put something over when she got that language into the agreement, for while "Japan proper" to the average man means the four big islands off the Asiatic coast, the encyclopedia meaning is all the islands from the Kuriles on the north to the Luku group in the south, Bonin Island, far out in the Pacific, and a lot of others.

So if the geographers are to govern, Japan would be permitted to establish naval bases and to fortify islands to the north and east of Guam and as close to the Philippines as Formosa (which is not Japan proper), while the United States could not add a gun to the few now on Guam or improve the defenses of the Philippines.

The naval experts see in this a threat to our Oriental communications. What chances a treaty calling for such conditions would have in the United States Senate may be imagined.

The geographical limits of Japan north and south are from 50 degrees 40 minutes north latitude—the apex of the Kuriles—to 24 degrees, which is the southern end of the Luku group. Moreover, these have been the boundaries of Japan for fifty years.

A.E.F. SWAN SONG IN COBLENZ IS PLAINTIVE "HOW DRY I AM."

The extreme aridity of these United States has at last reached the ears of the doughboys on the Rhine. The other day some 300 troops departed from the Coblenz area for Antwerp, from which port they were scheduled to sail for the States. The departing doughboys are not happy over the prospect of returning home. The thought of leaving their favorite Rhine-land vineyards for the Volsteadian dryness of their own country makes them sad, and as they march from the barracks to the transport the band plays "How Dry I Am."

TOUR OF DUTY IN ALASKA REDUCED FOR OFFICERS AND MEN.

Tour of duty in Alaska for officers and enlisted men is reduced to two years. This period will not include any time spent by officers or enlisted men in the United States or elsewhere outside the territorial limits of Alaska, and extensions of tours as at present authorized will be continued in effect.

SELECTION OF STUDENTS GENERAL SERVICE SCHOOLS.

In regard to policies governing the selection of student officers for the General Service Schools the War Department has decided that students will be selected for the School of the Line by the Personnel Bureau of The Adjutant General's office, and for the General Staff School and the Army War College by G-1.

U.S.A. DENTAL SCHOOL TO BE ESTABLISHED.

The authority for the establishment of an Army Dental School has been granted by the War Department. The Surgeon General has been informed that in a War Department general order, soon to be issued, an amendment to General Order 7, 1921, relative to special service schools, will be made to include the Army Dental School as one of the special service schools of the Medical Corps. A tentative draft of special regulations for this school has been submitted for revision for publication as set forth in paragraph on Military Education under the present system of Army Regulations.

ARMY TRANSPORT TO PANAMA AND PORTO RICO.

The War Department proposes to alter the itineraries of the regular transports to New York, Panama and Porto Rico so that one will go to Panama via Porto Rico and the next will go directly to Panama and return to New York via Porto Rico. The transport sailing from New York Jan. 12 was ordered to go on regular schedule, first to Porto Rico and then to Panama, returning directly to New York. The transport sailing from New York Feb. 16 will go directly to Panama, then to Porto Rico, returning directly from Porto Rico to New York.

U.S.S. NORTH DAKOTA COLLIDES WITH A SCHOONER.

The U.S.S. North Dakota, Capt. M. E. Trench, was in collision with the Nova Scotia schooner T. K. Bentley Jan. 3 off Cape Cod, Mass., and each vessel suffered some damage but arrived at the navy yard, Boston Jan. 4. No person was injured. Flare-up lights were first seen on the schooner on starboard bow when too close aboard and too late to avoid contact, although rudder was immediately put hard left. The schooner was slightly damaged and was not leaking.

Some of North Dakota stanchions were broken and the starboard lower boom demolished. Foulings of guns damaged four gun port shutters, three beyond repair by ship's force. The damage to guns and mounts had not been definitely determined at this writing, but the training and elevating system was jammed and the director thrown out of line.

The North Dakota stood by the schooner until the Navy tug Mohave arrived to tow her to Boston, in response to a wireless request sent from the North Dakota. The captain of the schooner claims he had the right of way. A court of inquiry headed by Capt. B. C. Decker, U.S.N., is investigating the collision. The North Dakota was bound to Cuba, when the collision occurred.

PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS CONTINUE AT STATIONS.

There will be no immediate change in the stations of public works officers at the various navy yards as a result of the appointment of Rear Admiral Luther E. Gregory, U.S.N., as Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks. Comdr. Albert A. Baker, U.S.N., who has been assistant to Admiral Gregory at the Boston Navy Yard, is expected to act as public works officer at Boston for some time if he is not permanently assigned to this duty.

Admiral Gregory is not inclined to make any changes in the organization of his force at present. The bureau is now engaged in reducing the expenses of the shore stations to a minimum in harmony with the policy of the department, and this work is being conducted by the officers now in charge. It is understood that Admiral Gregory fears there might be some interruptions in the drive for economy if any changes were made at present.

REAR ADMIRAL GLEAVES, U.S.N., PRESENTED FLAG AND CANE.

Capt. F. T. Evans, U.S.N., on Christmas Day, on behalf of the officers and enlisted men of the training station at Newport, R.I., presented to Rear Admiral Gleaves, U.S.N., on the eve of his retirement a silver mounted cane made from the keel of the famous old frigate Constellation, which was the first ship Admiral Gleaves served in, when he was a midshipman. The gift was accompanied by a letter congratulating the Admiral on his near half century service in the Navy. When the three-starred flag of Admiral Gleaves was hauled down from the Constellation on his relinquishing command of the 1st Naval District, Rear Admiral H. A. Wiley, U.S.N., who succeeded him, presented the flag to Mrs. Gleaves, the wife of the Admiral. Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, U.S.A., commanding the 1st Corps Area at Boston, was among the officers paying their respects to Admiral Gleaves.

CHANGES IN ASSIGNMENTS OF OFFICERS OF U.S. NAVY.

With the beginning of the year quite a number of changes in stations and commands of Navy officers have been announced at the Navy Department. Among the more important of them are the appointment of Capt. Frederic B. Bassett, jr., U.S.N., as hydrographer of the Navy Department, and of Capt. C. B. Morgan, U.S.N., to the 3d Naval District as president of the general courts-martial.

Capt. A. J. Hepburn, U.S.N., has been relieved as assistant chief of the Bureau of Engineering and has been detailed as chief of staff of the commander of the Naval Detachment in Turkish waters.

Capt. C. S. Freeman, U.S.N., has been ordered from Naval Operations to the Atlantic destroyer force. Capt. H. W. Osterhaus, U.S.N., who has been waiting orders, has been assigned to the Atlantic destroyer force.

SERVICE WINTER RESORT IN FLORIDA IS PROPOSED.

Rear Admiral Victor Blue, U.S.N., retired, and Comdr. F. L. Sandoz, U.S.N., retired, are active in a movement to establish a winter resort Army and Navy Club on Fort George Island near Jacksonville, Fla. Admiral Blue became interested in the enterprise while spending a winter in Florida and is now making an effort to build up the Fort George Club, which has purchased what is known as "The Homestead," located upon the island. The club has a reservation of 640 acres on the island and proposes to develop homes for Service people as well as maintain an Army and Navy Club on the co-operative plan.

WILL SUBMIT ESTIMATES FOR $20,000,000 NAVAL DEFICIT.

At the request of Chairman Madden of the House Committee on Appropriations the Secretary of the Navy will submit an itemized account of the $20,000,000 deficit in the cost of maintaining the Navy. Although the joint maneuvers were dispensed with this year and the most rigid economy exercised in all the expenses of the department and the fleet, there will be a deficit of over $20,000,000 in the naval appropriations for this fiscal year. Some of the deficit comes from last year. The deficiency is largely in freight rates, fuel and transportation.

BRIG. GEN. BUTLER, U.S.M.C., VISITS OFFICE OF CHIEF OF INFANTRY.

In response to the request of Major Gen. Charles S. Farnsworth, Chief of Infantry, Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U.S.M.C., visited the Infantry headquarters on Jan. 2. General Butler made a brief address.

In addition to the officers attached to the office of the Chief of Infantry those officers on duty in the offices of the Chief of Field Artillery, Chief of Cavalry and Chief of Coast Artillery also were invited to meet the General.

The General told of the work being done by the Marine Corps and the methods which were employed to maintain the personnel on an efficient and highly trained level. Primarily, he dealt with matters pertaining to morale and esprit de corps and the means adopted by the Marines to instill this spirit into every member of their organization.

CARE MUST BE TAKEN TO VENTILATE BELOW DECKS.

In reviewing the proceedings of the courts of inquiry and boards of investigation convened to inquire into the circumstances attending the deaths of Antone Huhn and John J. Morrill, late seamen, second class, U.S.N., on the U.S.S. Huron, and of William Sabon, late seaman, first class, U.S.N., on board the U.S.S. Hopkins, the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, notes that in each case death was the result of asphyxiation while working in an insufficiently ventilated compartment.

The Bureau of Navigation in a recent circular directs that every available means must be taken to properly ventilate below deck compartments prior to the entry of personnel, and all commanding officers are directed to take appropriate steps on board the vessels under their command to prevent future accidents of this nature.

SILVER LIFE SAVING MEDALS AWARDED TO THREE NAVY MEN.

Silver Life-Saving Medals awarded by the Treasury Department have been forwarded through the Navy Department to three enlisted men of the Navy for services rendered as follows:

Bernard M. Noonan, seaman, U.S.N., for his rescue of L. H. Chennault, pharmacist's mate, third class, also attached to the U.S.S. New York at the Municipal Pier, Bremerton, Wash., on July 5, 1921.

Ralph Joseph Martin, chief torpedoman, U.S.N., for his rescue of R. P. Murray, fireman, second class, U.S.N., who was swept overboard on April 18, 1921, while U.S.S. O-10 was en route from Bermuda to New London, Conn.

NAVY OFFICERS TO ATTEND ARMY FLIGHT SURGEONS SCHOOL.

The Secretary of War has written a letter to the Secretary of the Navy informing Secretary Denby that the War Department is pleased to authorize the attendance of Navy officers at the Army School for Flight Surgeons at such time as he may desire to send them.

CHIEF PETTY OFFICER APPOINTMENT SUSPENDED.

It is announced at the Navy Department that no more permanent appointments as chief petty officers will be made until further notice. It is stated that there is now an excess of petty officers.

Economy Rules in Navy Says Admiral Coontz

Economy and the co-ordination work of the division of material are the chief topics dealt with by Admiral Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy. Admiral Coontz differentiates between the tactical flagship and the administrative flagship, and emphasizes the importance of the latter in preparing the fleet for battle. His description of the functions of the division of material indicates that the outstanding lessons of the war are being taken seriously by the Admiral and the officers on duty with the Chief of Naval Operations. "Priority" of ships of the fleet for repair and alteration appears to be the central idea of the division of material in peace as it was in war with activities of the Navy and the Army. Admiral Coontz says: "The Navy Department is fully alive to the demand of the country for economy, and, in order that all persons connected with the Naval Establishment should realize their responsibility in the matter, orders have been issued to insure their fullest co-operation in preventing uneconomical use of naval supplies and funds, eliminating waste, and securing the full value of each dollar of the public money spent in the operation and maintenance of the Navy."

Worked for Economy.

"For the purpose of co-operating to the fullest extent with the administration in its expressed policy of reducing expenditures to the lowest basis consistent with efficiency, suggestions and constructive criticism have been invited from all connected with the Naval Establishment which tend to point out more economical methods of administration than those now in force in the Navy Department and in connection with United States naval vessels and stations."

"The Navy Department budget officer has given careful consideration to such of the suggestions as have been received, and in the preparation of the Navy Department's budget has had in mind, above all other considerations, the necessity for economy and of limiting expenditures to those absolutely necessary for the maintenance of a naval force as small as practicable consistent with the demands of our policy and the efficient operations of this force."

In discussing the administration's flagship as part of the fleet, Admiral Coontz says:

"The administrative training and indoctrination of the fleet in accordance with the War Plans occupies the major portion of the time of the commander-in-chief in time of peace, and requires that he shall have frequent personal touch for inspection and indoctrination with the various forces of the fleet. If the work just mentioned is performed on board one of the capital ships of the fleet, it will require the removal of the ship from the battle force during the visits of the commander-in-chief to the other forces of the fleet. Such absence of the flagship from the battle force materially handicaps the training of the battle force as a whole and weakens it by one of its most important units. This undesirable situation has led the Department to provide for the commander-in-chief, a smaller, faster vessel, suitably equipped to house the facilities of organization, administration and training of the commander-in-chief for the purpose of an administration flagship. This ship, the Great Northern, has been obtained by transfer from the War Department and has been placed in commission as the administrative flagship of the fleet."

Maryland Tactical Flagship.

"The most powerful ship of the fleet, the Maryland, has been designated as the tactical flagship of the fleet and it is expected that the commander-in-chief of the fleet will utilize this vessel during the combined tactical maneuvers of the fleet and when action is joined with the main body of the enemy fleet."

In describing the functions of the division of material, Admiral Coontz states:

"This division has been active during the past year in the co-ordination of all activities concerned in the maintenance of the vessels of the fleet in material condition as far as practicable with the limited funds available. A comprehensive survey of the material condition of every vessel of the fleet has been established and maintained by means of reports from the fleet, navy yards, and the material bureaus in connection with technical execution. This information is tabulated and placed in such form that the Chief of Naval Operations has at hand immediate knowledge of the military and material needs of every vessel in the Navy. By means of this information and by planning in advance the Chief of Naval Operations has been able to make units of the fleet available for repairs without interference with the training of the fleet, and the continuance of a steady labor load at the navy yards by means of a system of priority based upon operative needs and the order of importance of work to be performed upon each vessel of the Navy at navy yards; advance notice being given to the commandant of the navy yards and to the material bureaus of the Navy Department."

Weekly Review of Fighting Going On

According to Helsingfors dispatches of Jan. 3, Russian troops have recaptured the important Karelian town of Porajarvi and the fall of Repola was imminent. The Repola-Porajarvi district, inhabited by a population largely of the Finnish race, has been a bone of contention between Russia and Finland since the latter country was established as an independent state, and was made the subject of special stipulations in the Dorpat treaty between Russia and Finland of Oct. 14, 1920. Under this treaty provision was made for the establishment of a militia constituted by the local inhabitants and special guarantees were given for their protection.

Riga dispatches of Jan. 3 reported extensive military preparations under way along the frontier between Russia and Finland by both Russians and Finns.

Communist Mobilization Ordered.

The Bolsheviks were estimated to have 150,000 men in Karelia and in the vicinity of Petrograd, and the mobilization of all communists born in the year 1899-1900 had been ordered. Tchitcherin, Russian Foreign Minister, delivered a note to the Latvian government warning the latter against joining Finland in an appeal to the League of Nations. The Finns were reported to be concentrating rolling stock at important junction points.

Helsingfors dispatches of Jan. 7 reported that a detachment of Karelians retreating before Bolshevik forces entered Finnish territory near Ilomant and were pursued by the Bolsheviks for about thirty miles from the frontier. The weak Finnish frontier guard retired after a short fight. The Finnish government has protested to Moscow against this invasion of its territory.

Russian sources claim that the Karelian insurrection has been completely broken up.

Morocco.

As a result of recent operations in the Melilla sector Spanish forces have succeeded in driving the Moors from their strong position on the Guruga hills, forcing them beyond the Kert river, and have advanced along the Melilla railway as far as Tisutun. As a result of these operations they now hold the line of the Kert river and have recovered the entire Melilla railroad.

The most important area in the vicinity of Melilla has thus been cleared of hostile Moorish forces and further advances beyond the Kert river against the bands of the eastern Moroccan leader, Abdel-Krim, are being initiated. At the same time operations against the force of Raisuli, the descendant of the prophet, have been resumed in western Morocco. Two columns of a combined strength of 25,000 men, advancing from El Araish and Tetuan, have effected a junction near Xezauen, the holy city of the Moors, and have captured important Moorish strongholds in this vicinity.

The Far East.

Definite information as to developments in eastern Siberia since the capture of Khabarovsk reported last week is lacking. Chita reports are to the effect that Japanese troops have occupied Taitshar, an important point on the Chinese Eastern Railway, and are endeavoring to secure possession of the entire railway through the agency of reactionary Russian bands.

The Chita government is mobilizing additional classes for service in a counter-offensive against Khabarovsk. Chita dispatches of Jan. 6 claim that the Chita forces advancing on Khabarovsk were defeating the White Guards and approaching the city. Partisan bands operating between Khabarovsk and Nizhnekolensk were said to have cut off the retreat of the Kappel forces.

CAPTAIN ROSENBLUTH FREED OF CRONKHITE MURDER CHARGE.

Mr. James W. Sladen, prosecuting attorney of Pierce county, Wash., has announced that he will not initiate prosecution as a result of the killing of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, U.S.A., son of Major Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, U.S.A., at Camp Lewis in October, 1918. In his official report, Mr. Sladen exonerates Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, of New York, who was arrested by Federal authorities on a charge of having slain Major Cronkhite, the charge having been made by Sgt. Roland R. Pothier.

Pothier, in a purported confession, declared he shot Major Cronkhite at the instigation of Captain Rosenbluth, but later retracted this assertion, and Captain Rosenbluth was released. In his report Mr. Sladen also states, among other things, that it was upon the unsupported statements of Pothier more properly termed ravings, that a complaint was filed against an hitherto capable and efficient officer charging him with the crime of murder.

It is also stated in the report made by Mr. Sladen that it was clearly established by almost every document in the possession of the prosecuting attorney, that Captain Rosenbluth never had any reason or motive for wanting Major Cronkhite out of the way, and "we deem it only proper and fitting," says Mr. Sladen, "that our best efforts be put forth to right the wrong done him."

AERO CLUB OF AMERICA HOLDS ANNUAL DINNER.

A number of interesting speeches concerning future aviation and the control of the air were made at the annual dinner of the Aero Club of America, held at Hotel Commodore, New York city, Jan. 9. Major Gen. M. M. Patrick, U.S.A., Chief of Air Service, in the course of his remarks stated that three essentials were needed for the successful development of aeronautics in the United States; proper legislation, adequate meteorological data, and a proper system of landing field facilities.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, U.S.N., Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, held that the day of the capital ship was by no means gone, despite the assertions of some persons to the contrary. He also advanced the opinion that the capital ship of the future might be an airplane carrier equipped with a catapult for launching. Admiral Moffett also stated that he believed the Navy, in less than a year, would be equipped with a dirigible in which helium would be used, and that it would sail from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and that stations would be provided for at a number of important places.

official test of a few dozen miscellaneous horses. It would seem to indicate also that the Remount Service was following an unquestionably correct plan to produce a highly satisfactory riding and utility horse.

Conclusions on Test

As a participant in the endurance test, I sum up my conclusions as follows on the various breeds:

(a) Crabbett.—Pure Arab of unusual size for an Arab, demonstrated that Arab blood has stamina, courage and weight-carrying ability. As he was beaten last year by 15/16 thoroughbred, I do not claim for him supremacy over all breeds.

(b) Vagrant.—A thoroughbred, demonstrated that the thoroughbred has all the gameness, stamina and speed that would ever be required of a cavalry horse.

(c) Rustem Bey.—Half Arab, half standardbred, illustrated by the value of both the Arab and standardbred blood. I attribute his wonderful showing just as much to his good standardbred blood as to his Arab blood.

(d) Castor.—Morgan, comes in to support my statement that a good horse of any recognized breed will be highly satisfactory as a cavalry horse. He was there with the "goods."

(e) Pathfinder.—Thoroughbred, confirms my views as noted for Vagrant.

(f) Crangmore.—Half thoroughbred, half standardbred, to my mind, was one of the best horses in the test. Had he been properly conditioned he might have cleaned up the whole lot. He demonstrates my opinion of the value of both the standardbred and thoroughbred blood.

That the test as conducted this year is of any practical value to determine the breed to be adopted as a sire for the cavalry or utility horse, I stoutly deny. The only value of it was to show that all breeds entered could do an enormous amount of work under almost impossible conditions and were, therefore, all suitable for aires. That the test is worthy of serious thought and better support I freely admit, but before it can be of value as a guide for the selection of sires, it must have a large number of equal entries of all breeds. It must cover a long period of years before reaching any conclusion with the time, weight, and distance, the same for all entries and it also must be conducted by a fair, impartial board as a test and not as a medium of advertisement of any particular breed.

Improve All Breeds

In conclusion, it can be definitely said that the Remount Service has not obtained from any source, military or civilian, sufficient data on which to base any argument as to the entire use or the entire exclusion of any particular breed of horse. Neither does the work of any other nation in existence show any such definite conclusion. The object of this Service and the American Remount Association is to carry out the recommendation of the Remount Board to the Secretary of War which admits only of a co-ordination of efforts of all breeds.

Assistance, intelligent encouragement, and improvement of all the useful breeds, including thoroughbred, Morgan, Arab, standard, saddlebred, etc., as well as mules and draft horses, must be our object if we wish to attain success. On the other hand, we can only attain prompt and justified destruction by forcing a hobby to our own liking on the breeders of the nation, and maintaining a stubborn, unreasonable attitude that a certain breed maintains and contains the only desirable attributes of a serviceable, useful animal for both war and peace purposes.

Sport

POLO AT FORT SAM HOUSTON.

The fall handicap tournament, which was played in lieu of the Corps Area Tournament, ended in a fast and furious game between the headquarters, 8th Corps Area and the 2d Division four, as these two teams had defeated all contestants in spite of some large handicaps and were entitled to enter the finals. The final game was played on Dec. 4 on the Camp Travis field.

The game from start to finish was fast and close. At no time was either team more than two goals in the lead. At the opening of the seventh period the score stood 9 to 6 in favor of the headquarters team. In the last two periods of the game the superior mounts of the 2d Division showed up to an advantage and the 2d Division scored two goals, making the actual number of goals scored 9 to 8 in favor of the headquarters team, but as the handicap was two goals in favor of the 2d Division, the final score stood 10 to 9 in favor of the 2d Division. Individual cups were awarded the players by General Lewis, commanding general, 2d Division.

The line-up of the teams was as follows: 2d Division—No. 1, Lieut. G. C. Benson; No. 2, Major Terry Allen; No. 3, Major R. F. Anderson; No. 4, Lieut. Col. P. W. Corbusier, Headquarters, 8th Corps Area—No. 1, Capt. C. S. Kilburn; No. 2, Major H. J. M. Smith; No. 3, Major H. E. Taylor; No. 4, Col. W. V. Morris.

The sub-tournament, which started on Dec. 11, was won by the 12th Field Artillery. In this tournament the three highest handicapped teams, Headquarters, 8th Corps Area, San Antonio and Camp Travis first team, were eliminated and the following teams entered: 1st Squadron, 4th Cavalry, 3d Infantry Brigade, 12th Field Artillery, Kelly Field, 5th Cavalry.

The line-up for the final game was as follows: 12th Field Artillery—No. 1, Captain Gerhardt and Lieutenant Heister; No. 2, Lieutenant Benson; No. 3, Major Anderson; No. 4, Major Peyton. 5th Cavalry—No. 1, Captain Meador; No. 2, Captain Daniels; No. 3, Captain Hood; No. 4, Captain Forsyth.

The final score of this game was 12th Field Artillery, 10; 5th Cavalry, by handicap 1, by goals 5, total 6.

MIDSHIPMEN BEAT ALBRIGHT.

Fast and daring team play gave the midshipmen a big margin over Albright on the local basketball court on Jan. 7, the score being 52 to 22. The first choice of the Navy squad played during the whole of the first half, running up a score of 32 to 10.

The play of Ault, captain and center of the Navy five, was particularly good, his scoring on quick throws being his best line. McKee, who led in scoring last season, was next on scoring from the floor, and had the excellent score of eleven successes in fourteen tries from the foul line. Barnes and Johnston also did good work, while many substitutes were tried in the second half.

Albright had a spirited team and showed some good team play and passing, but the speed and systematic playing of the midshipmen overwhelmed them.

The visitors scored but three times from the floor, Miller netting the ball twice in the second half, and Kingsley tallying in the first. The rest of the points were on Wagner's shooting from the line, his tallies numbering sixteen in twenty-one attempts.

FORT HAMILTON ATHLETICS.

Beating Co. C by a 28-16 score, Co. B, 34th Inf., carried off the basketball championship of Fort Hamilton, on Jan. 4. After playing two close games with Co. C, each of which was won by a single point. Co. B, by superior team work, won by a decisive margin. Lubbes for the winners scored eight points, three of his baskets being among the best thrown during the season. Colone, of Co. B, likewise piled up eight points for his team, and Baier scored six fouls from the floor and added a field goal to his total.

The line-up of the championship team during the season has been as follows: Forwards, Baier and Colone; guards, Lubbes and Ferolie (Capt.); center, Phillips; substitutes, Whitfield and Steadman.

Capt. Irving Scudder tied the high bowling score of the season last week when he rolled 213. Sergeant Major Werner had for over a month held the high mark.

POLO AT PINEHURST.

During the week before Christmas the Camp Bragg Polo Team suffered defeat at the mallets of the Sandhills Polo Club, of Pinehurst, N.C. The final score of 12 to 4 is not a fair indication of the respective abilities of the two teams, as the play was fast and both aggregations seemed to be about equally matched. A large number of officers and men motored from Camp Bragg to Pinehurst to view the game. A return game was played between the two teams on Dec. 23, the officers turning the tables on their opponents by winning 3 to 2. This play was a part of the Pinehurst annual Christmas tournament, a round robin with three teams entered.

ATHLETICS AT FORT SLOCUM.

The Fort Slocum football team, under the management and coaching of Major LeRoy Bartlett, U.S.A., closed its season by defeating Corrigan Council, of the K. of C., on Nov. 19. As in baseball, the team, coached by Major Bartlett, ran through its entire season, winning the championship of the New York Harbor League, without a defeat. The football season being over, the thoughts of the garrison have turned to basketball, hockey, skating and tobogganing. The basketball team has been organized and, under the management of Lieut. Lloyd H. Gibbons, U.S.A., is to begin its season soon. When the skating rink at the post is completed a series of hockey games will be played with teams in the vicinity.

BASKETBALL AT CAMP HUMPHREYS.

The game of basketball between Headquarters Co. and Co. B, of the 13th Engineers at Camp Humphreys, Va., on Jan. 5 resulted in a score of 18 to 7 in favor of Headquarters Company. There will be three more games in the series.

The Camp Humphreys junior basketball team, average weight ninety-five pounds, will be glad to arrange games with other teams about their weight. Correspond with Chaplain Perry O. Wilcox, Camp Humphreys, Va.

Interesting War Books

MONTENEGRO AND THE ALLIES.

The January Forum publishes an article by Luigi Cricuolo on "Montenegro Betrayed by the Allies." The author, among other things, says that the British, French and even Italian governments have absolutely ignored the rights of Montenegro, because they all have particular political interests to foster. England has manifested her sympathy for Montenegro, but has taken no positive action. France has been using every effort to establish a Greater Serbia so as to counter-balance the influence of Italy in the Adriatic. Italy has been interested in concluding an accord with Jugo-Slavia for commercial reasons, so that in the Treaty of Rapallo no mention was made of Montenegro. "In November, 1918," the article states, "Serbia committed her first crime against Montenegro, when she proclaimed the forced annexation of the country with the support of France and its generals, Franchet d'Esperey and Venel, who were then in command of the Allied troops in the Balkans. In May, 1919, the Committee of Montenegrin Refugees submitted to the French republic a memorandum in which it exposed the participation of French diplomacy in this crime, and supported the accusations by documentary evidence. The French republic assisted Serbia in every way in its designs to destroy the sovereignty of Montenegro, and the English government, through the medium of Lord Curzon, supported France's attitude by not taking any steps."

The author quotes many protestations of friendship on the part of the Allies toward Montenegro, but says that in spite of these Serbia found it possible to annex her ally, Montenegro, by force.

Although the author realizes that Americans may feel it their duty to keep out of European entanglements, he says: "In permitting ex-President Wilson to represent them at Versailles the American people assumed an obligation which they cannot easily discard. No matter what attitude may be taken now by President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes and Senator Lodge on the question of European relations, certain obligations were incurred by the then President of the United States."

"There is no doubt that Wilson and Clemenceau were largely responsible for the creation of Jugo-Slavia—a Greater Serbia. Wilson had undoubtedly altruistic motives, although it has been said that American interests were desirous of gaining commercial influence in the Balkans. Clemenceau, however, had one predominant reason to sponsor a Greater Serbia—the humiliation of Italy and the lessening of her influence in the Mediterranean, and the substitution of French influence, both from a political as well as a commercial standpoint."

At the conclusion of his article the author says: "What can the United States do? I do not pretend that it should send a fleet or troops to Serbia, but it seems strange that Americans should maintain relations with a despotic nation like Serbia. It is to be regretted that the United States should allow Serbia's representatives to remain in Washington, and to allow its own representatives to remain in Belgrade, while no reparations have been made for the crimes committed against the Montenegrins."

NATIONAL GUARD

INCREASE IN N.G. RECRUITING.

The steady increase in the strength of the National Guard the past two months has far exceeded the expectations of the Militia Bureau of the War Department. The number of units extended Federal recognition has also largely increased over that of November.

The strength of the National Guard on Nov. 30 was 135,255 officers and enlisted men, while Dec. 31 the returns showed that this figure had increased to 138,862 commissioned officers and enlisted men.

New York retains the lead in obtaining the greatest number of recruits with a total strength of 18,917 men for November compared with 19,642 for December, a net gain of 725. Pennsylvania is second with a total November strength of 11,861 against 12,270 for December, a gain of 409 in the enlisted personnel. Kentucky is third with a total November figure of 1,728 compared with that of December, 2,097, a gain of 371 men. Indiana is fourth, her November enlistments totaling 4,256 against December's 4,566, a gain of 310 recruits.

Texas fell behind in recruiting in December, and Louisiana stands fifth with a November total of 828 compared with her December figure of 1,064, a gain of 236. Oklahoma stands sixth, her November total being 3,186, December 3,368, which is a gain of 182.

N.G. MUST RETURN WATCHES.

The attention of the Militia Bureau has been directed to the fact that some states have not complied with the instructions contained in Circular 20, March 18, 1921, that watches of certain types having been eliminated as articles of issue, be returned to Frankford Arsenal.

The Secretary of War accordingly directs that instructions be issued to the various states to turn in to the commanding officer, Frankford Arsenal, such watches as may be in the possession of the National Guard and report to the Militia Bureau with as little delay as practicable the number and kind of watches shipped.

N.G. IN 9TH CORPS AREA.

The National Guard located in the 9th Corps Area, the headquarters of which are in San Francisco, Calif., had a total membership on Nov. 30 last of 8,835 officers and men. This is a gain of 143 since the returns of Oct. 31 last.

The strength of the National Guard of each state comprised in the 9th Corps Area, as given in the official returns of Nov. 30, was as follows: California, 2,660; Idaho, 404; Montana, 70; Oregon, 2,097; Utah, 381; Washington, 2,547; Wyoming, 476. Aggregate, 8,835.

ILLINOIS.

The 124th Field Artillery, Illinois N.G., Col. T. S. Hammond, will have its armory in Chicago repaired to the extent of some $10,532. The repairs include plumbing, lighting, heating, painting and fixing the roof. The regiment also has a fund of some $9,000 which can be used for prizes for best drill attendance, recruiting, gunnery, athletics, entertainments and purchase of furniture and fixtures for battery rooms.

Provision has been made for the employment of a custodian for the armory at a salary of $200 per month, $150 being paid by the state and $50 by the regiment. The employment of a regimental property officer at a salary of not to exceed $200 per month has also been authorized, $150 of which is to be paid by state and $50 per month by the regiment. The regimental commander may use funds received from renting the armory for the good of the regiment.

MICHIGAN.

A handsome souvenir of the Infantry Training Center of the Michigan N.G., class of 1921 for enlisted men, of which Major Loren C. Grievess, Inf., U.S.A., was major instructor, has just been issued. It is dedicated "To those of the 32d Division in whose footsteps we are trying to follow." The souvenir contains the schedule of the four weeks' instruction, the names of the thirty-seven graduates, likenesses of the fifteen instructors, an address by Major Grievess and a group picture of the staff, instructors and students of the class.

In concluding his address Major Grievess said: "When you report back to your home stations your success or failure as an instructor will depend entirely upon your method and tact. Simply turn in and help loyally. Let your criticism, if any, be constructive, not destructive. Don't tell them that they are all wrong, that, at the Training Center, you did it thus and so. If you do you will soon become a joke and your value as an instructor will be lost. Remember that little word 'tact' and 'help it'."

The course was attended with the greatest success and will prove a valuable feature in aiding the efficiency of the National Guard. The graduates have organized as a class, of which Sergt. W. E. Dame, 25th Inf., of Detroit, is president.

In Michigan the reorganization of the National Guard started in 1920 and is keeping well pace of the allotted quota. The August encampment saw eleven units of the 125th Infantry, the 126th Infantry, complete, a squadron of the 106th Cavalry and several units of the 119th Field Artillery under canvas at Grayling. These regiments will all be completed before next summer.

Plans for the formation of a regiment of 155-mm. Howitzers are being prepared by Col. Heinrich Pickert. The regiment, fully motorized, will be rapidly completed. The armory will cover an entire city block and will have a complete machine shop, oil and gasoline stations and quarters for a permanent personnel of thirty machinists and motor mechanics.

Upon completion of headquarters company, 125th Infantry, in Detroit, division headquarters troops are to be formed in this city.

An especial appeal is being made to high school students throughout Michigan to get into the Guard. This appeal is meeting with success.

The National Guard Training Center, a school for non-commissioned officers, held at Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 18 to Dec. 17, 1921, marks an epoch in National Guard training. Under the personal supervision of Major Loren C. Grievess, D.O.L., senior instructor for Michigan, the school has proved a great success. Major General Farnsworth inspected the training center Dec. 13 and has since recommended the adoption of this plan for National Guard throughout the United States.

INDIANA.

The first annual ball of the 113th Engineers, Indiana N.G., Major A. P. Melton, given at Gary on the night of Dec. 31, proved a great success. In addition to the dancing there were an address of welcome by Major Melton and some vocal and literary numbers. There was also an exhibition drill under Sergeant Woods.

Among the patrons and patronesses were Governor and Mrs. W. T. McCray, Major Gen. G. W. Read, U.S.A., and Mrs. Read, Major Albert T. Rich, U.S.A., and Mrs. Rich, Major W. W. Edwards, U.S.A., and Mrs. Edwards, and Mayor and Mrs. W. F. Hodges.

Major Melton is doing excellent work in building up an efficient organization and hopes soon to be able to increase his command to a regiment, the additional batteries needed to be organized in neighboring towns. At a recent dinner given in Gary in honor of Adjutant Gen. H. B. Smith, and which was attended by prominent citizens, the matter of an armory for the 113th was brought up and it is hoped that a suitable building may be erected within the next year.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The table of strength of the North Carolina National Guard for Nov. 30 shows its aggregate strength to be 81 officers and 2,084 men. This is only 89 men behind the leading state in the 4th Corps Area, which includes the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The 120th Infantry has a membership of 44 officers and 1,239 men, the Cavalry has 11 officers and 294 men, the Field Artillery 13 officers and 218 men, and the Signal Corps, Engineers and Coast Artillery 13 officers and 283 men.

In the official figures of drill attendance for November, Co. D, 120th Infantry, is noted as the best with a percentage of 88. The poorest record is held by Troop B, 8th Cavalry, which had only a percentage of 36.

NEW YORK.

Brig. Gen. De Witt C. Weld, jr., commanding the 52d Field Artillery Brigade, N.Y.N.G., will review the 258th Field Artillery on Saturday night, Jan. 21, under Col. Elmore F. Austin, in its armory at 29 West Kingsbridge road, Borough of the Bronx, New York city.

The 212th Artillery, N.Y.N.G., Col. N. B. Burr, will be reviewed in its armory in New York on Thursday night, Jan. 19, by Brig. Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid, The Adjutant General of the state. On this occasion a number of State Service World War Medals will be presented to the members of the 12th Infantry Post, New York Legion in a body by the Hon. Charles S. Whitman, Governor of the state during the World War. Among others who will be presented with the medal are Mr. Whitman, Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, Louis W. Stotesbury, Charles W. Berry, Charles H. Sherrill, Cois, J. Weston Myers, Nelson B. Burr, Thomas Denny, A. B. Quarrier, A. F. Schermerhorn, and others. Major Gens. R. L. Bullard and John F. O'Ryan and Police Commissioner Richard Enright are among the invited guests.

Brig. Gen. Charles I. De Bevoise, U.S.A., formerly colonel of the 107th Inf., U.S.A., when it was on the battle line in France, will review the 107th Infantry in its armory in New York city on the night of Friday, Jan. 20.

LOUISIANA.

Lieut. Col. Louis A. Toombs, The Adjutant General of Louisiana, has been awarded the War Department D.S.M. for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services as provost marshal in Italy, a position of great responsibility."

The citation says: "During the critical situation arising from the decision of the Peace Conference on the Fiume question, by the means of good judgment and tact, he so managed the situation as to prevent all friction between the American Expeditionary Forces and the Italian populace. Due to his efficiency the military police of Italy were held to a high state of military training and discipline. He has rendered services of much value."

NEW JERSEY.

The Mackay Legislative Investigating Committee of New Jersey, which has been looking into the affairs of the National Guard of the state, incident to the election of Brig. Gen. Howard S. Borden as brigade commander some months ago, has made drastic recommendations.

The committee recommends the disbanding of the present Infantry brigade, the transfer of its officers to the inactive list, and the establishment of a new brigade in its place.

General Borden was elected over a veteran overseas officer and numerous resignations of officers followed as a protest. According to the committee report, General Borden's election was accomplished by "innuendo almost amounting to threats toward the electors, the field officers of the 3d and 6th Regiments."

The report also says that "the morale and efficiency of the organizations have been reduced to the point where they cease to be a military asset," and that "the practice of appointing or electing officers who do not possess the ability or experience necessary to command troops in the field is responsible for this deplorable condition."

REVIEW OF 165TH NEW YORK.

Col. William J. Donovan, who commanded the 165th Infantry, U.S.A. (69th, N.Y.) on the battle line in France during the World War, reviewed his old regiment in its armory in New York city on the night of Jan. 9, and also had the honor of unveiling a bronze tablet, "Commemorative of the glorious deeds of the regiment during the World War." The 165th made up a part of the 42d Division (Rainbow).

The regiment under command of Col. John J. Phelan turned out with such solid ranks that it was difficult to find sufficient room to maneuver it. It paraded twelve companies of rifles, a howitzer, headquarters and service company and a medical detachment, and made a handsome showing. An enthusiastic audience filled every inch of available room in the armory.

Colonel Donovan had an honorary staff which included Brig. Gen. Edward Duffy, Lieut. Col. T. J. Moynahan and E. A. Anderson, Majors Reilly and Ryan, and Captain Cavanaugh.

Decorations were presented to individuals as follows: Italian War Cross, to Lieut. R. W. O'Neill, N.Y. State; Conspicuous Service Cross, to Capt. T. E. Fitzsimmons, Lieut. R. W. O'Neill, Regt. Supply Sergt. A. Richford, Sergts. E. J. Coney, A. Sutcliffe and W. A. Mehl.

WASHINGTON.

Since the annual field encampments last summer the strength of the Washington National Guard has been gradually slipping lower rather than increasing, as it should, according to an official statement from the adjutant general of the state. All during 1921, except for the last month, Washington led the other states in the 9th Corps Area in the number of troops being maintained.

The enlisted strength of the Washington National Guard on Dec. 30 was 2,393. It should be approximately 3,250. The 146th Field Artillery lacks 328 enlisted men; the 161st Infantry, 401; the three Coast Artillery companies, 94; the Tank company, 23, and Machine Gun Troop B, Cavalry, 8. To make up the deficiency every organization below its maximum strength, Adjutant General Thompson says, is being instructed to go out and get the men needed.

Six organizations in the state are already over the authorized 100 per cent. strength. They are Co. E, Bellingham, 8 over; Co. K, Pullman, 8 over; Co. L, Everett and Arlington, 10 over; Battery A, Walla Walla, 10 over; 116th Motor Ambulance Co., Mt. Vernon, 4 over, and Sanitary Detachment, Seattle, 3 over. Each organization is permitted to have a 10 per cent. surplus of enlisted men. The 3d Battalion, 161st Infantry, leads all the other battalions in the state in strength. Only 25 men are needed by this unit to bring it up to full strength.

Brig. Gen. C. B. Blethton has resigned on account of business, and also for the reason that the Federal Government has called on him to assist in organizing Washington's quota of the 96th Reserve Division. He has been connected with the Washington N.G. since 1913.

Industrial Mobilization

In keeping with the great American fallacy that the people, through the War Department, can raise an Army overnight, is the still greater but more modern one that we would be enabled to produce the required armament by the next day. The people of the United States, in the past, have been unable to understand that to have effective INDUSTRIAL MOBILIZATION in time of war we must have INDUSTRIAL PREPARATION in time of peace.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY.

Major Gen. Harry L. Rogers, U.S.A., Quartermaster General, in his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, under the head of "Industrial Survey," says:

"Extensive industrial survey of the country has been made. One designated depot in each of the nine corps areas has been charged with the duty of contributing to the confidential file in the Office of the Quartermaster General, definite information on all potential producers in that area of the Army supply, as to the identity, location, product, normal and emergency capacity, and changes and time necessary for possible conversion from peace to war basis. This information is obtained by means of personal inspection made by practical and tactful representatives of the Quartermaster Corps, commissioned and civilian. The resulting record is the joint estimate of producer and special agent."

"So far, 516 firms have been interviewed and 716 completed records secured. These go to form the basis for further detailed tabular and graphic studies in quartermaster supply, transportation and allocation of industries, both current and for the future. All such data are obtained by the patriotic co-operation and assistance of the industries concerned and filed in the confidential records of the Office of the Quartermaster General."

ARMY TRUCKS ON HARD TRIP.

When the war broke out manufacturers of automobiles were flooded with orders for Army trucks and other motor vehicles. The deluge of orders caused more or less confusion, as the country was not industrially mobilized at that time to handle the sudden increase in production in any line.

Now that the lessons of the war have had time to sink in, the country is beginning to realize the importance of industrial preparedness for any emergency that might be brought on by war. For that reason big industrial concerns are now able to turn over products in large quantities and in short order to the War Department without radically changing specifications. In other words, products are becoming standardized for industrial usage along lines specified by the Army.

A good example of industrial efficiency, as it touches on the needs of the War Department, is furnished in the trip of seventy-five skeleton Army trucks from the factory in Kenosha, Wis., to Camp Bragg, N.C.

Through sleet and snow from Kenosha to Jeffersonville, Ind., and then another long "hop" across the mountains in bad weather to Camp Holabird, Md., the military convoy traveled without mishap. This convoy, consisting of the seventy-five new type tractor trucks, for use of the Field Artillery, went through an exceptionally hard journey, with only the usual and anticipated troubles. The new trucks, manned by a Motor Transport company, Quartermaster Corps, supplemented by Field Artillery personnel, were driven from their place of manufacture at Kenosha to Jeffersonville without bodies, which were built on at the Jeffersonville Quartermaster Intermediate Depot. The convoy is under command of Major B. F. Miller, F.A., who has had wide experience with motor transport of all sorts.

Before leaving Camp Holabird, Dec. 30, Major Miller sent a letter of appreciation to the camp commander, Lieut. Col. George E. Ball, Q.M.C., for the excellent service given the convoy at Holabird and the many courtesies extended to the officers and men.

WAINWRIGHT AND HARBORD ON INSPECTION TRIP.

Leaving Washington Jan. 7, J. Mayhew Wainwright, Assistant Secretary of War, and Major Gen. James G. Harbord, Deputy Chief of Staff, U.S.A., started on a month's inspection trip of the Western and Southern Service schools and military posts. Lieut. Cornelius C. Jadin will accompany the party.

Aside from making a study of the condition of the quarters of the Regular troops and discussing the work at the schools, the Assistant Secretary of War and General Harbord will take up with the commanders and the instructors at the schools the plans for the development of the National Guard, the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Organized Reserves.

COMMENT ON THE NEW PAY BILL

THE NEW PAY BILL.

TO THE EDITOR:

The tentative plan for the new pay bill as advanced by Representative McKenzie, and published in your issue of Dec. 10, if interpreted correctly by me, appears to have reached the peak of destructive Army legislation. Some of its provisions are so unreasonable and tragic that it is almost impossible to understand the basis for their inclusion in the bill or what person or persons advocated their existence.

The plan of base pay being determined wholly by length of service disregards the fundamental principle "that pay should go with grade," or, briefly stated, an officer holding the grade of captain with the duties and responsibilities pertaining thereto should have his base pay determined by that grade. On attaining a majority, with the duties and responsibilities of that grade, the base pay should be that of a major and so on through the list.

Pay should fit the grade, with the duties performed and responsibilities attached. This is so and always has been so in civil life. It has been the system of pay in the armies of the world, and in this Army of ours. On what precedent, experience or theory is the new plan based? If additional compensation for length of service is to be granted, why not retain the present practice of "fogies"? It has proved satisfactory in the past.

Pay for length of service and not duties performed has always resulted and always will result in the person so paid becoming a mere time server. It is certain death to initiative, push and efficiency. What incentive has an officer, paid according to length of service, to work for and look forward to promotion?

The constructive service clause of the tentative bill will bring about the following results. A very large number of captains, at least 1,500, will be commanding companies whose lieutenants will be drawing twice their pay. A very large number of majors will find themselves commanding battalions in which all or part of their company commanders will be paid a thousand dollars more per year than they receive.

A large number of colonels with twenty years or more of service will draw the same or less pay than about 300 majors who have been in the Service only five years.

This highly perfumed state of affairs will add greatly to the efficiency and morale of the officer personnel. This clause is a cause for conjecture as to the identity of the officer or officers who appeared before the committee on pay and advocated such a plan. The common consensus of opinion of officers around these parts of "the border," and I venture to state it is the opinion of eighty per cent. of all the officers, is "better lose the bonus and retain the pay bill of 1908 than have the pay bill, advocated by a few, pass."

DOUGHOY.

LENGTH OF SERVICE DISCRIMINATIVE.

TO THE EDITOR:

The proposed scheme of Mr. McKenzie, which is a revolution in rates of pay for officers of the Army and which is based on length of service irrespective of the grade which an officer holds, will do a great injustice to the officer who entered upon his life career in the Regular Army as a second lieutenant.

It is understood that an officer appointed to a grade above second lieutenant as of July 1, 1920, would receive a large amount of constructive service and that officers not appointed under that act are limited to their actual service.

The greatest injustice enumerated in this whole scheme is the way in which Regular Army officers with less than twelve years' service are discriminated against.

Take the following examples: A major accepted commission as second lieutenant Aug. 26, 1921. This places him in the $2,000 class (the same class that practically all first lieutenants are in) until Aug. 26, 1922. An officer appointed captain as of July 1, 1920, would receive seven years' constructive service and service from April 6, 1917, which would place him in the $3,000 class on April 5, 1922. In short, this major with over ten years' service will receive less pay than a captain with, in many cases, less than four years' service.

A major originally appointed a second lieutenant in 1915 will be in the $2,000 class until 1926 while a captain appointed July 1, 1920, will be in the $3,000 class all during that time and will be in the $4,000 class shortly after the major arrives in the $3,000 class.

Take the case of any officer who entered the Regular Army as a second lieutenant since 1911 and received his regular promotions and was in the Regular Service prior to July 1, 1920. He is now a major, captain, or first lieutenant, and in practically every case has more commissioned service than those appointed as majors, captains and lieutenants on July 1, 1921. However, under Mr. McKenzie's proposed bill the officers appointed July 1, 1920, will receive credit for from three to fourteen years more than the Regular Army officer who entered upon his career as a second lieutenant.

These are not exceptional cases by any means, and hundreds of officers, particularly those who received their original commissions in the Regular Army, would by such legislation be unjustly discriminated against.

It is believed that Mr. McKenzie's proposed pay bill has the best principles involved in it that have as yet been proposed, i.e., pay on length of service and an increase for officers having dependents. However, it is believed that since officers who were commissioned in the Regular Army on July 1, 1920, are to receive constructive service for computing pay, therefore all officers who receive appointments or promotions in the Regular Army that were effective July 1, 1920, should receive constructive service for the grade to which they were appointed or promoted on that date.

JUSTICE.

THE ENLISTMENT ALLOWANCE.

TO THE EDITOR:

In the proposed bill to change pay of the Services as published in your edition of Jan. 7, 1922, the following appears: "Sec. 11. 'On and after July 1, 1922, an enlistment allowance equal to $25 multiplied by number of years in enlistment period from which soldier has last been discharged shall be paid every honorably discharged soldier who re-enlists within three months from date of last discharge.'"

Will you kindly interpret the precise meaning of this, whether it means the enlistment period the soldier is serving in at date of last discharge, or the number of years that constitute the enlistment period. To be plainer, if a soldier has sixteen years' service it is assumed he is serving in his sixth enlistment period at date of last discharge. Does he get fifteen times $25 upon re-enlisting or what amount does he get assuming he has completed a three-year enlistment?

J. J. C.

[Note.—It would make no difference whether the man had served six years or sixteen years. If his re-enlistment follows a discharge from a one-year enlistment he will receive $25; if it follows a completed three-year enlistment he will receive $75 as a bonus for re-enlistment.—EDITOR.]

CONSTRUCTIVE SERVICE OF A CAPTAIN.

TO THE EDITOR:

With reference to the proposed new pay bill for the Services, as printed in your issue of Jan. 7, attention is invited to the manner in which the bill may operate to reduce the pay of one captain.

He was originally commissioned during the emergency as a captain on May 6, 1918, at the age of forty-three. He was appointed in the Regular Army, as of date July 1, 1920, to a captaincy under the National Defense act as amended June 4, 1920.

Assuming that the rates of pay for the second, third, fourth and fifth pay periods increase in direct ratio from $1,200 for the first period to $6,000 for the sixth period, the pay for the second period will be $2,160, and for the third period $3,120 per year.

This captain on reading Sec. 3 of the proposed bill discovers that for pay purposes there will be credited to each officer heretofore and hereafter appointed in the Regular Army, other than in course of promotion by seniority, constructive service, which in the grade of captain is seven years, such constructive service being apparently for the purpose of compensating an officer for previous experience gained in civil life, and which is of value to him, and of value to the Service; otherwise it is evident that the officer would not have been accepted and given a commission in the Regular Army. Reading further in the same paragraph, he discovers that such constructive service shall include all actual service rendered prior to that date. In other words, this captain of now forty-six years will have credited to him for pay purposes, up to July 1, 1920, seven years and no more, or, assuming the passage of this bill in the first half of 1922, nine years of service. This would put him in the second pay period at approximately $2,160 per year, in lieu of $3,120 which he now receives. He would have to serve a year at this rate before attaining his present rate of pay.

However, reading the second paragraph of Sec. 3, he learns that "all those appointed in grades of captain or first or second lieutenant to date July 1, 1920, shall be credited with continuous service from April 6, 1917, to date of approval of this act and this continuous service shall be in lieu of all constructive service to which any such officers might otherwise be entitled under this section." Under this provision this captain will be credited with only about five years of service for pay purposes, compelling him to serve another five years at $2,160, or about $1,000 less than he now receives.

Sec. 18, however, comes to his aid in a small degree, since "nothing contained in this act shall operate to reduce pay of any officer on active list below pay to which he is entitled by reason of his grade and length of service on June 30, 1922, as determined by pay schedules prescribed for officers of Army and Navy by acts making appropriation for support of 1909, approved May 11, 1908, and May 13, 1909, respectively." This apparently would not permit this captain to be reduced below $2,400, or a reduction of $720 below his present pay. It is observed that the wording of this section does not refer to the increased compensation granted officers under act approved May 18, 1920, effective Jan. 1, 1920, and which ceases June 30, 1922, and in effect reduces the pay of this captain to that fixed in the pay bill of May 11, 1908.

Sec. 6 further allows this captain $1.30 per day for subsistence for himself and one dependent, or a total of $39 per month. Therefore his total pay and allowances, if occupying public quarters, will be approximately $239 per month, or a net decrease of $21 per month from his present pay. He will have to serve another five years at this rate before receiving any increase.

I believe I have interpreted this bill correctly in this captain's case, although I hope I have missed something whereby his pay will not be reduced below that received at present. It is hard to believe that it is the intention of this bill to reduce the pay of an officer of this captain's age by any of the various amounts as figured above. As in the case of the promotion list, the officer of mature age and of good previous experience gained in commercial or technical pursuits, and which he brings to the Service to its advantage, presumably, but by no fault of his own having only a short period of service in the Army is made to suffer financially by the operation of these details of the bill. It is believed that the committee has no intention of doing individual injustice, but this analysis indicates that it is the purpose of this bill to reduce the rates of pay below that now received, although the title of the bill leads one to believe that it is designed to increase the efficiency of the Services."

CAPTAIN, Q.M.C.

THE ARMY ANYWAY—DEAT THE PAY.

TO THE EDITOR:

I am an aged officer, thirty-nine years old, engaged in my former profession since 1904. I like the Army—believe in it—and when the opportunity was offered former emergency officers in 1920 to re-enter the Service I came back as a captain with much happiness. However, I did not think, nor, I am certain, did the board that examined me, that I was to serve under men who were at that time appointed lieutenants. Neither did I think that I would take orders from all the young Regular Army captains. It gives a peculiar feeling to an old captain like me to act as first lieutenant to another captain 2,000 files behind me on the promotion list and fifteen years my junior. And it will probably always be that way, for I can never get by those bad files to a majority.

And now the new bill is going to take away my pay. It is difficult to figure how I stand, but the latest estimate places me $400 behind a certain married second lieutenant.

But—and this is a big but—all the pay reductions in the Army and all the humiliations that an old fellow in my position feels, will not cause me to leave the Service. I will have to be thrown out, for I like this here Army.

I am a bachelor and have had all the dog-kennel quarters, the rotten detached assignments, the "Old man, do you mind taking O.D. for me? The wife is sick" requests. But, when that pay bill goes through I'm going to get married and have triplets the first year.

LET'S GO.

CONSTRUCTIVE SERVICE IN PAY BILL.

TO THE EDITOR:

Sec. 3 of the proposed pay bill, published on pages 438 and 439 of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for Jan. 7, 1922, is intentionally or unintentionally a discrimination against the officer who was in the Regular Service prior to April 6, 1917.

The constructive service authorized by that section for officers above the grade of captain will give to officers appointed under the act of June 4, 1920, more service and consequently more pay than many officers who rank above them on the promotion list.

It is assumed that when these officers were appointed, there were good and sufficient reasons for placing them where they are on the promotion list. Has anything occurred since then to nullify those reasons? If not, why should these officers be given more pay than others ranking above them?

The promotion list published by the Adjutant General's office, dated July 1, 1920, assigns to each officer appointed under the act of June 4, 1920, a constructive date of original commission. Why should not these dates be used in giving constructive service to these officers for the purpose of computing pay under the proposed bill? If that is done they will receive pay commensurate with their rank. It will also avoid the anomaly of having an officer carried with a certain number of years' service on the promotion list and with an entirely different number of years' service on the list for computation of pay.

Perhaps this does seem a "dog in the manger" view to take of the case, but no man enjoys being discriminated against and even Army officers resent it at times.

NOTHING FOR THE RETIRED LIST?

TO THE EDITOR:

In your last week's issue the proposed new pay bill includes:

(a) "Sec. 18. Nothing contained in this act shall operate to affect pay officers now on active list below pay to which he is entitled by reason of his grade and length of service on June 30, 1922," etc. Why should not this sentence read, "Any officer of the Army" or "Any officer on active list or retired list?" Surely it cannot be that anyone deliberately wants to exclude the retired list from this saving clause.

(b) "Sec. 19. Nothing contained in this act shall operate to effect pay officers now on retired list . . . are now receiving." What is meant by now? Date of the approval of this act or July 1, 1922? If the latter date is meant, then why not have it read "are receiving on June 30, 1922"? If the date of the approval of the act is meant, then all retired officers who might be eligible to their last hope of any reward for active duty would lose it provided their promotion or longevity increase fell due between the date of passage of the act and July 1, 1922. Certainly this would be unjust and probably not intended.

The latter part of this section states "Hereafter no officer of any Service . . . who is on the retired list . . . shall receive any increase of retired or equivalent pay on account of promotion attained or length of service accumulated because of active duty performed while a retired officer." This is positively brutal. Again, what is the effective date of "hereafter"? Knowing your firm stand for justice, I trust you will give this space in your valued columns.

Washington Letter

warmly contested by the representatives of the Marine Corps. The Marine Corps has a large amount of foreign service under the most difficult conditions.

The family allowance or the allowance for dependents encountered some opposition in all of the Services. The Secretary of War in a letter submitted to the committee some time ago indicated his objections to this proposition. It is understood that the Secretary of the Navy takes the same position. There are a great many deficiencies in the bill which it is generally expected will be corrected. For instance, there is no provision for maintaining the Marine Corps band on its present status. A protest against destroying this famous musical organization will come from out of the Service as well as in, if the bill is not amended so as to provide for it as it is maintained under the existing law.

Obstructionists Busy in House

It is recognized that a new bill continuing the present rate of pay cannot be passed through the House without a contest with a combination of economists and pacifists. Chairman Madden of the House Committee on Appropriations is endeavoring to make a record in the reduction of all appropriations. He is insisting that the economies effected by the budget organization are not the last word in the reduction of appropriations. He is talking of reducing the pay of all the Services down to the 1908 basis. He is insisting that there should be a cut of $75,000,000 in the pay of the Services.

Fortunately, Mr. Madden's views are not shared by all the members of even his own committee. That there is more than a fighting chance for the legislation is evidenced by the expression of the willingness of the Speaker to appoint a special committee to which the report and the bill of the Wadsworth committee can be referred. As the legislation would affect five different Services, it is evident that in the instance of harmony a special committee should be appointed. There is no committee of the House that handles legislation for all the five Services. The work of formulating a bill will be rushed by the Wadsworth committee and its report will be submitted to the Senate and House at the earliest possible date.

Free and loyal discussion is necessary in order to conquer the truth.—Camille Flammarion.

The Pay Bill

THE proposed pay bill is still more or less indefinite. The various blanks will have to be filled in and many inconsistencies will have to be straightened out before it takes shape as a law.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has always advocated an adequate pay rate to maintain an efficient Army and Navy personnel on a self-respecting basis. We earnestly hope that Congress may take well considered, definite and prompt action on the bill, after its many debatable provisions have been threshed out, so that the officers and men in all the Services may find their work properly appreciated and adequately remunerated. We hope the difficulties that beset both the active and retired list under present conditions may be overcome by the adoption of adequate permanent pay rates, based, not on the far-away conditions of 1908, but on the conditions of the present and the future.

There is a wide difference of opinion in the Services as to the merits and demerits of the bill. While some hail it as a financial savior, others bitterly oppose it as being prejudicial to their interests. These differences must be ironed out as the bill shaped for the best interests of the largest number. Let us hope that all differences will be adjusted forthwith and that the bill will find a speedy passage through the maze of Congressional red tape so that it may appear soon on the statute books of the nation as a well-deserved reward for the long sufferings of the officers and men in the Services.

Fitness vs. Favoritism

One of the chief accomplishments of the Training Camps Association was the substitution of the principle of fitness and training for that of political favoritism in the selection of war-time officers. This was the greatest step ever taken in the history of the country in the offering of our war-time Army. It established the principle of physical, intellectual and moral fitness and technical training as a test in place of the old test of political influence.

THE above is republished from the excellent history of the activities of the Military Training Camps Association by Major Tompkins McIlvaine, which appeared in the issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for Jan. 7, to emphasize the importance of maintaining this policy. It amounts to the extension of the policy under which the Military and Naval Academies have been maintained by the Government to the selection and instruction of Reserve officers.

Much as it has been condemned, there is an argument to support the filling of offices in the Civil Establishment with those who belong to the party in power. It is claimed, with considerable logic, that the subordinates in the Civil Establishment should be in harmony with and loyal to the officers at the head of the department who come into power through an election by the people.

High Standard Required

No such arguments can be sustained in the selection of officers for the Military Establishment, either in time of war or in time of peace. Fitness and efficiency should be the standards for the Military Establishment. The civil authorities shape the policy of the Government, even to deciding when it should go into war. The military and naval authorities conduct the war. They should be selected for their fitness to serve in the Military Establishment and trained and instructed for this purpose.

These principles have been incorporated into the Army Reorganization act. If

THE Army and Navy Journal will welcome expressions of opinion on the proposed pay bill from officers and men in any of the Services. The measure affects everyone in the Services but the effect varies with circumstances. Consequently the consensus of opinion will be of the greatest interest to everyone who wears the uniform. The result of the canvass will be published week by week.

Major McIlvaine had not been so modest he would have dwelt on the fact that the Military Training Camps Association, of which he has always been one of the most active spirits, was largely responsible for the adoption of these principles by Congress.

But, unfortunately, under our form of government, the enactment of law by Congress does not always guarantee its enforcement and the carrying out of the policy for which it provides.

The work of the Military Training Camps Association has only just begun. The law creating the Officers' Reserve Corps will doubtless be amended from time to time. Appropriations are now needed to develop the corps.

The recommendations urged by the Military Training Camps Association in behalf of such appropriations are bound to have a beneficial effect in Congress. The country needs such a strong organization of men with military service and patriotic motives to co-operate with and aid its Military Establishment.

A Dangerous Proposal

SENATOR KING of Utah would have us believe that the best way to create a peaceful, law-abiding world is to discharge its police force. That not until the soldier doffs his uniform and discards his weapon can the dove of peace nest undisturbed; nor until the men of the navies become tenders of orange groves will the troubled waters of international relations respond to the command, "Peace, be still."

The Senator's remarks on the economies of our Army and Navy lead us to believe that he considers that whatever military and naval personnel we must perforce maintain would be of more value to the country if it saved the nation dollars and cents by serving as do the conscripted continental armies, practically without pay. The fact that a well-paid personnel is a contented and more efficient personnel evidently is not worth his consideration.

Drastic Reduction of Personnel

Hear what Mr. King had to say in the Senate on Jan. 4 when he introduced Senate Joint Resolution 152:

"Mr. President, I desire to introduce a joint resolution for the reduction of the personnel in the Army and the Navy. . . .

"May I say that it seems to me, if we are earnest in our desire to promote world peace, we ought to begin reducing our Army and Navy below present limits. Moreover, the costs of maintaining the Army and Navy are so enormous, even with the rather small Army we now have, that the American people, in my judgment, will not and ought not to submit thereto. We are expending now for our Army of less than 200,000 men more than or nearly as much as Germany paid to maintain her army when it approximated seven or eight hundred thousand or a million men; and some steps should be taken either to reduce the number far below the present limit or to reduce the expenses. The overhead of both the Army and the Navy is entirely too great.

"We have not learned the art of economy in handling the Army and in handling the Navy. When we appropriate, as we did for the current fiscal year, in the neighborhood of $800,000,000 for the Army and the Navy, it is entirely too much. It is time there should be a halt, and I hope that the Committee on Military Affairs and the Committee on Naval Affairs will address themselves to a reduction of the personnel involved in the Army and in the Navy."

The resolution, which was read twice by title and referred to the Military Committee, provides:

"That the total number of commissioned and warrant officers of the U.S. Regular Army, exclusive of retired officers and disabled emergency officers awaiting discharge upon completion of treatment for physical reconstruction, and the total number of enlisted men of the U.S. Regular Army, including the Philippine Scouts, shall be reduced by the Secretary of War to an aggregate maximum of seventy-five thousand.

"Sec. 2. That the total number of commissioned and warrant officers of the U.S. Navy, exclusive of retired officers and disabled emergency officers awaiting discharge upon completion of treatment for physical reconstruction, and the total number of enlisted men of the U.S. Navy, including apprentice seamen, shall be reduced by the Secretary of the Navy to an aggregate maximum of fifty thousand.

"Sec. 3. That the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy shall adopt immediately such measures as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, and any reductions shall be made without regard to provisions of existing law or rules and regulations relating to resignations, separations or discharges."

False Economy

In effect, Senator King would practically abolish our Army and our Navy, notwithstanding the world has seen no diminution of the commercial, racial and national jealousies that have always required the watchfulness of properly directed military power to hold them in check.

Secondly, Senator King would sacrifice efficiency to economy and rob the military and naval personnel of all incentive to professional fitness, for he stands not only for pay reductions but, in another bill, for stoppage of promotions.

Some of those Western Senators who were instrumental in bringing about the rejection of the nomination of Major Peck would be the first to raise the old cry of "Keep the Army out of politics" were any of their own constituents rejected.

Notwithstanding the arguments of certain theorists and other impractical persons, the fact remains that after the delegates to the Conference on Limitation of Armaments and Far Eastern Questions have, like the proverbial Arabs, folded their tents and silently moved away, the nation with the punch and the material with which to place it in action first will be the one that will win.

Eliminate a certain percentage of armament, if you wish, but don't eliminate national preparedness—lest you be eliminated.

Militarism

THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is constantly being attacked, principally by the smaller papers of moderate-sized towns and cities in the center of the country, on the score of militarism. Apparently there are a considerable number of persons in the country, including a certain class of editors, who in no way distinguish between things military and militarism.

Being opposed to militarism, they rush to the other extreme and advocate nothing short of complete disarmament and the elimination of everything having to do with the military Services.

Spirit Within Uniform Governs

If they would study our past history and think for a few moments about the facts outlined in it they would see very quickly the fundamental difference between things military and militarism. They would see that it is not a uniform, or armament, or even the practice of arms, which makes for militarism, but the spirit in the souls of those who are wearing the uniform.

When our Revolutionary War was over the American citizens who had worn a uniform and had borne arms on various battlefields returned to peaceful pursuits in civil life without evincing any desire to embark upon a campaign of conquest. At the close of the Civil War the hundreds of thousands of men on both sides, who had bitterly fought for four years, took off the uniform, laid down their arms and returned peacefully to civil pursuits. The American Expeditionary Force in the recent war was just beginning to be a real Army. It was just reaching a point where, if the spirit of conquest had existed, it would have commenced to show itself.

War a Means—Not an End

It would be hard to find anyone so ignorant of the real feeling which actuated the men of this force as to dare to say that it was militaristic.

Those who cannot distinguish between things military and militarism frequently refer to the Military and Naval Academies as schools for militarism. If they will take the trouble to look up the records of the graduates they will find that the greatest leaders in times of war, furnished by these schools, have always been men of simple character, who considered war only excusable for the accomplishment of definite good when no other route was possible, and that none of them has ever shown the slightest desire to engage in conquest for conquest's sake, or to prolong the period of fighting one moment beyond that essential for the purpose for which we went to war.

If these same ignorant critics will take the trouble to investigate the feelings entertained toward our troops by the inhabitants of territory they have occupied they will find that everywhere it has not only been friendly but friendly to the point of not wishing to see them leave when the time came. Whether under the ancient walls of Peking or along the Rhine, it is always the same.

As long as the American citizen, be he a civilian or a soldier or sailor, believes in the principles on which this country is founded, our Armies and Navies, no matter how large or well armed, will never be militaristic. When the citizens of this country, be they civilian or soldier or sailor, commence to believe in taking what they want by force, then the country will be militaristic, regardless of its armament.

7TH CORPS AREA O.R.C.

A synopsis of addresses made at the first convention of the Reserve Corps officers of the 7th Corps Area, U.S.A., held in Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23-24, 1921, has recently been printed and issued in pamphlet form, and interesting matter is contained therein. Col. E. E. Watson, of Minneapolis, Minn., who was elected chairman of the convention, in his opening address said in part:

"You may realize the importance of extending a Reserve Corps, for the Government has never had a definite military policy extending to the Reserve system. There are 67,000 Reserve officers in the 7th Corps Area. The country has three lines of defense: first, the Regular Army; second, the National Guard, and third, the Organized Reserves. I wish to impress upon you the importance of arousing in the minds of these Reserve officers the obligations which they have assumed when they accepted a commission in this Reserve. Should the time come, which we hope will never come, but it has come before and it may come again when it is necessary for the Government to call on these lines of defense for protection, the Organized Reserves will be prepared to do their part."

There were numerous discussions concerning the future of the R.O.T.C., its value to the nation, organization, training, etc. Among the officers of the Regular Army who took part in the convention were Col. H. D. Neff, H. B. Myers, J. B. Woolnough, T. J. Rogers and Major J. L. Frink.

The convention, among other business, adopted a constitution and by-laws and unanimously elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Lieut. Col. E. E. Watson, Inf., R.C., Minneapolis, Minn.; secretary-treasurer, Lieut. J. S. Lincoln, A.S.R.C., Minneapolis, Minn.; vice presidents, Lieut. Col. Paul Doty, St. Paul, Minn.; Capt. O. E. Engler, Omaha, Neb.; Lieut. Col. R. Burkham, St. Louis, Mo.; Lieut. Col. H. E. McNider, Mason City, Iowa; Col. M. L. Shade, Mitchell, S. D.; Lieut. Col. E. P. Quain, Bismarck, N. D.; Major C. R. Clark, Little Rock, Ark., and Lieutenant Colonel Lee, Leavenworth, Kas.

RUTGERS COLLEGE.

An innovation in stimulating competition among the various companies of the cadet battalion has been started at Rutgers College and the results from the first month of its operation are highly promising. Carefully rating the five companies on the basis of weekly disciplinary drills, the Regular Army instructors on duty at New Brunswick are able at the end of each month to determine the best organization. As a reward this organization is designated for the following month as "color company" and occupies an honored place in the battalion's affairs.

For the month of December the ratings, which have just been calculated, found Co. B the highest with a percentage of 73.14. The company is officered by the following cadets: Capt. T. P. Brown, Brooklyn, N. Y.; 1st Lieut. E. L. Gidley, South Bound Brook, N.J., and Lt. C. Summerlin, Penns Grove, N.J.; 2d Lieut. C. K. Sellers, Garwood, N.J.

Co. D was second with 67.04 per cent., and the others were rated for December as follows: Headquarters Co., 62.35; Co. A, 56.01, and Co. C, 48.74.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON.

The fall quarter just closed at the University of Washington, Seattle, as far as military activities of students are concerned, was one of the most successful this institution ever experienced. Although the corps is not numerically as strong this year as last year, due to the fact that the university authorities found it necessary to limit the number of students, it has made up in enthusiasm and spirit the difference in numbers. There are now 846 students undergoing military training in the basic and advanced courses.

Three times during the term the corps has been called upon to make a public appearance and each time, despite the fact that half of the men in ranks were taking their first year of military training, acquitted itself in a most satisfactory manner. The corps took part in the Armistice Day parade in Seattle. Regular Army officers and former Service men commented on the showing made by the students. On

Nov. 16 Major General Wright, commanding general of the 9th Corps Area, inspected and reviewed the corps. The General appeared to be favorably impressed with the showing made by the unit. When Marshal Foch paid a visit to the university the corps acted as a guard of honor and later in the day took part in the parade in his honor in Seattle.

On Dec. 13 the corps turned out for parade, wearing the gold star, in recognition of the institution's being listed among the three distinguished institutions in the 9th Corps Area and one of the twenty in the United States.

In the spring the corps will make use of the rifle range at Fort Lawton for their training in marksmanship. During the past quarter several trips were made to the range. In the corps there are one expert rifleman, three sharpshooters and eight marksmen. All of these men qualified during the 1921 summer camps.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

Military and circus stunts will make up the R.O.T.C. Field Artillery circus to be given Jan. 20 at the University of Illinois.

S. Cartland, '22, is chairman of the circus. This is the first time that the Field Artillery has tried such a plan.

LOUISVILLE MALE HIGH SCHOOL.

During the past three months the R.O.T.C. unit of the Louisville Male High School under its new commandant, Col. James R. Lindsay, has been making great progress. A great degree of perfection has been obtained in the close order drill during this brief time. Classes in military science and tactics are conducted weekly by Colonel Lindsay.

The regiment commanded by Cadet Lieut. Col. J. W. Chenaault, Jr., is divided into two battalions of four companies each, commanded by Majors J. L. Isert and H. S. Keeling and a sixty-four-piece band led by Cadet Capt. Tony Resta.

In a recent competitive drill Co. F, commanded by Cadet Capt. J. L. Cummings, carried off the honors in the shape of a silver cup.

A competitive drill followed by a dance at the Jefferson County Armory will be given in the near future to raise money for the purchase of sabers for officers.

NEW BEDFORD HIGH SCHOOL.

Mayor Remington of New Bedford, Mass., extended to Capt. John A. Pearson, military instructor at the New Bedford High School, congratulations on the showing made by the R.O.T.C. at the semi-annual prize drill recently held in the Armory. The Mayor wrote as follows:

"Permit me to congratulate you upon the splendid showing made by the New Bedford battalion of the R.O.T.C. at the semi-annual drill held at the Armory last evening."

"It is several years since I have had an opportunity to see the military drill of the young men connected with our high school and I was gratified at the showing made by them under your instruction. The officers displayed thorough familiarity with their duties and the bearing of the men was all that could be desired, indicating a fine esprit de corps."

"The Reserve Officers' Training Corps is a fertile field for the cultivation of school spirit, self-command and self-reliance and in this capacity it must prove an invaluable asset for good in the community, and, at the same time, it gives warrant for sure, prompt and invaluable service to the national government in time of need."

"Kindly extend commendation to the officers and men of your organization."

Naval Militia

Officers of the Naval Militia and Naval Reserve of the 3d Naval District in New York city joined with Commodore R. P. Forshaw, of New York, and battalion commanders in tendering a dinner to Capt. John W. Timmons, U.S.N., on the occasion of his detachment from that station and in appreciation of the work he has done in reorganizing the U.S.N.R.F. of the 3d District. The dinner took place at the Army and Navy Club of America, New York city, Dec. 28, and proved a most enjoyable event.

The 2d Battalion of New York Naval Militia of Brooklyn, Capt. E. T. Fitzgerald, hopes to have a U.S. destroyer allotted to it by the Navy Department for deep sea cruises. Captain Fitzgerald has made a request to Secretary Denby for the use of such a craft and it would be a great aid to the instruction of the battalion, which already has three Eagle boats for the use of its members.

M. T. Camps Association

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS.

The Executive Committee of the Military Training Camps Association of the United States met on the evening of Jan. 10 at the Harvard Club, New York city, and discussed the permanent policy to be followed. No definite action was taken, but various matters are under consideration to be worked out later.

A sub-committee of two was appointed to work with Lieut. Col. Arthur F. Cosby, executive secretary, in getting out the annual report. The report probably will be ready to submit in another week. The members of the Executive Committee were the guests of Col. Grenville Clark at dinner at the club.

Colonel Cosby is now in Washington following up suggestions made to the War Department recently by a committee from the association in regard to the operation and administration of the Red, White and Blue training camps for the coming year.

Naval Reserve Force

ENDORSES WASHINGTON BOARD, U.S.N.R. RECOMMENDATIONS.

Capt. James P. Parker, president of the National U.S. Naval Reserve Association, has written a letter to Secretary of the Navy Denby in which he endorses the general policy recommended by the board of officers of which Rear Admiral Thomas W. Washington was president, for Naval Reserve legislation. It is made plain by Captain Parker that his letter embraces his personal views and that he has not held any meetings of his association.

It is not anticipated that there will be any serious opposition from the Naval Reserve to the recommendations of the Washington board. This board followed closely the general agreement that was reached between its members and representatives of the Naval Reserve at a conference held in Washington. Captain Parker suggested some modifications for the report, but they are said to be of a minor character and will be accepted by the Washington board.

Captain Parker recommends that in the preparation of the bill that great care be exercised in defining the term "active service." He expresses the hope that the bill will be drawn up so as to avoid the necessity of a large number of comptroller's decisions to define the rights of the Reservists for pay.

JUNIOR NAVAL RESERVE.

Some of the purposes of the United States Junior Naval Reserve and the attractions and benefits it holds out for the boys of the country are set forth in an article by Edward A. Oldham, executive secretary of the Junior Naval Reserve, in Sea Power, the official organ of the Navy League.

The Junior Navy League is an advance movement toward laying a base work to Americanize our merchant marine, which is the vanguard in the operation of United States maritime service. The league has as its objective the direct training of American boys and to apply this training through public schools and colleges, covering all subjects which are necessary to procure a master's license for navigation as well as the engineering courses in steam and electrically driven craft.

The league has an honorary personnel of noted American naval officers and an advisory board of those prominent in civil life. It has prepared and trained many young men who have gone to the U.S. Military and Naval Academies, to the Great Lakes, and who are to-day in the Navy and Marine Corps and successfully and happily following the sea aboard ship in every important steamship line on the Atlantic and Pacific.

"American crews for American ships" is the league's slogan. This league is supported by voluntary contributions.

The U.S. Junior Naval Reserve was incorporated in 1915 as the result of a meeting of Navy officers at the Hotel Biltmore, New York city. Encampments were held in the spring and summer of 1916 and during the summers of 1917 and 1918 camps were opened at Corpus Christi, Camp Dewey and West Palm Beach. These encampments were successful. A Junior Naval Reserve post is now located in every state.

In a letter to Mr. Oldham, President Harding said:

"I cannot too strongly endorse the work you are doing. It is the sort of training of the inclinations and interests of boys toward the very thing that we must develop in this country if we are to take and hold the place on the sea that is both our right and our duty."

Promotions and Retirements

Major Gen. William G. Haan, U.S.A., was retired from active service Jan. 7, 1922, upon his own application after more than thirty-six years' service. General Haan was born in Indiana, Oct. 4, 1863, and is a graduate of the U.S.M.A., class of 1889, when he was assigned to the 1st Artillery.

General Haan, who has a distinguished record of service, among many other duties was at outbreak of the World War in command of the coast defenses of Eastern New York, at Fort Totten, at that time holding the rank of colonel.

In August, 1917, he was appointed a brigadier general and assigned to the 57th Field Artillery Brigade in the 32d Division. He continued in command of this brigade until Dec. 8, 1917, when he was assigned to the command of the 32d Division. General Haan was appointed major general, National Army, on Dec. 17, 1917. He commanded the 32d Division in France through all of its severe fighting, and on Dec. 22, 1918, he was advanced to the command of the 7th Corps.

General Haan received the D.S.M. for exceptional, meritorious and distinguished services. The citation said: "This officer while in command of the 32d Division took a prominent part in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and also in the brilliant and successful attack against the Cote Dame Marie, covering several days, which deprived the enemy of the key-point of the position. His clear conception of technical situation involved showed him to be a military leader of superior order."

He was decorated by the French government with the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor. The French in citing General Haan for this last honor stated that "he commanded the 32d Division with remarkable ability during the operations culminating with the retaking of Chemin des Dames and then of Leon. Thanks to the magnificent spirit of his troops, who had absolute confidence in their chief, he advanced several kilometers and took the important position of Juvigny, which the enemy defended with despairing obstinacy."

Shortly after General Haan's return from France he was selected as director of the War Plans Division of the General Staff. In this position he carried the responsibility for the establishment of vocational and educational training in the Army. The division of the General Staff which General Haan later headed is charged with the preparation of plans for national defense.

Major Henry S. Hostetter, Finance Dept., U.S.A., was retired from active service Jan. 8, 1922, upon his own application after more than thirty-eight years' service. He was born in Pennsylvania, Oct. 21, 1861, and was first commissioned in the Q.M.C. June 3, 1916, having previously served as pay clerk, Q.M.C.

The application of Comdr. Robert W. Kessler, U.S.N., to be placed on the retired list after thirty years' service has been approved by the President, effective Jan. 31, 1922.

Lieut. Comdr. Henry Reuterdaahl, U.S.N.R.F., was retired Dec. 27 and Lieut. Comdr. Francis G. Marsh, U.S.N., on Dec. 30, 1921, for physical disability incident to service.

The following officers of the Navy were retired on the dates noted in 1921, for physical disability incident to service:

Eldridge, U.S.N., Dec. 30; Lieut. Walter J. Fanger, U.S.N., Dec. 29; Lieut. (j.g.) James H. Alvin, U.S.N., Dec. 27.

Chaplain George C. Stull, U.S.A., having reached sixty-four years of age, was retired from active service Jan. 13, 1922, after an efficient record of service, which was evidenced by the many commendations of commanding officers. His entire service in the Regular Army has been with the 11th U.S. Infantry, a somewhat unique record in recent times. Chaplain Stull was born in Pennsylvania in 1858, educated in Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., receiving the degrees of B.A. and M.A. from that institution. He entered the Spanish-American War as chaplain of the 1st Montana Infantry Regiment in May, 1918, serving in Philippine campaigns and was honorably mustered out from the Volunteers in 1899. In 1901 he received a commission as chaplain in the Regular Army. After serving ten years, Chaplain Stull, having been recommended for "special efficiency," was promoted "by selection" to the grade of major, and in 1920 he was again advanced to a lieutenant colonel, in which grade he retires.

Chaplain Stull has served in the Philippines, Cuba, Porto Rico, on the Mexican border, was with the Mexican Expeditionary Forces under General Pershing and with the A.E.F. in France. The principal stations at which Chaplain Stull served with the 11th Infantry are Fort Douglas, Ariz., the Mexican border, Chattanooga, Tenn., Hoboken, N.J., and in France. For his services in France during the World War the French government conferred upon him the "Order of University Palm" with the grade of "Officer d'Academie, with silver palms." "Chaplain Stull," writes an officer, "has always most energetically labored for the moral welfare of all persons in the Army. A minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, he has worked with deepest religious zeal, but his work as advisor, instructor and guide of young soldiers and his skill in arranging recreational features for the Army will be long remembered, as will his radiant influence for good which his sterling personality imparted to all with whom he served."

Master Sergt. Bruno Drews, Service Co., 53d Inf., was placed on the retired list at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., Dec. 6, 1921, upon completion of thirty years' service. He first enlisted in the Regular Army Dec. 28, 1898, in Co. M, 13th Inf., and took part in Philippine campaigns with the regiment. He subsequently served with the Coast Artillery, 16th, 20th and 53d Infantry. Among other services he was on duty with the Punitive Expedition in Mexico, 1916; in the Gerardmer action, Vosges, France, and took part in the Meuse-Argonne offensive from Nov. 1 to 11, 1918. Col. P. H. McCook, commanding the 53d Infantry, in general orders says, in part: "He was appointed regimental supply sergeant on the first special order issued by 53d Infantry headquarters and this position of trust he has held continuously to date of retirement. Master Sergeant Drews is to be congratulated upon his enviable record as a soldier, and his highly honorable and faithful service stands out worthy of emulation by all soldiers of this command. It is with regret that we lose Master Sergeant Drews. The best wishes of all officers and enlisted men of this regiment and of his host of other friends follow him in his well earned retirement."

Obituaries

In a letter to Major F. K. Chapin, Cav., U.S.A., on duty with the Military Board of Allied Supply in Washington, D.C., General Payot, of the French Army, under date of Wiesbaden, Dec. 23, says:

"I was very painfully surprised by the receipt of your letter announcing the death of Major Harry L. Hodges, Field Art., U.S.A., Nov. 28, 1921. Of course, when we left America, we knew that he was seriously ill; but we had hoped that his robust constitution and his indomitable energy would overcome his painful illness."

"Major Hodges' death deprives the Military Board of Allied Supply of one of its most valuable and active members. Pray believe that we all deplore this irreparable loss which deprives us, not only of a devoted collaborator, but also of a true and affectionate friend."

"Our comrade Hodges died as a soldier, because he died at his post, after spending himself without stint on the hard and painful task to which he had consecrated himself body and soul. The American Government, by placing the Distinguished Service Medal on his coffin, only rewarded the impeccable servant who carried his devotion to his country to sacrificing his life for it."

"May this last testimonial of the affection of those who have known and appreciated Major Hodges be a consolation in the great sorrow of Mrs. Hodges, to whom I would thank you to kindly transmit this letter with the respectful expression of my sentiments of condolence."

Lieut. Comdr. Middleton Sommes Guest, U.S.N., retired, died at the naval hospital, Annapolis, Md., Jan. 7, following a protracted illness of tuberculosis. He had been in failing health for the last two years. Surviving him are his wife and a daughter, Miss Anne Guest. Interment was in Arlington Cemetery. Commander Guest was a native of Portsmouth, N.H., and a son of the late Commodore John Guest, U.S.N. He entered the Medical Corps of the Navy at the age of twenty-one. At the outbreak of the World War he volunteered his services and again went on active duty.

Va., in the 82d year of his age. During the Civil War Dr. Booth was an assistant surgeon in the Confederate States Navy, and served on the Confederate gunboat Selma. He took part in the battle of Mobile Bay and was taken a prisoner on Farragut's flagship, Hartford. A peculiar coincidence was that nearly fifty years afterwards his own son, in the U.S. Navy, served as executive officer of this same ship (Hartford). For many years Dr. Booth lived at the historic old home of Carter's Grove, Va., on the James river, where his home was always open to all. His friends in the Navy, especially those who enjoyed his hospitality, will regret to learn of his death.

At the beginning of the World War he was appointed a captain, Q.M.C., and was discharged from commission on Oct. 31, 1919. Captain Hissong was employed as office manager in the office of the finance officer, U.S.A., New York, N.Y., from November, 1919, up to the time of his death. He served in the office of the Paymaster General from June, 1898, until November, 1899, and was on field service in the Philippine Islands for several years. He leaves a widow, mother, brother and sister. The interment was at Foresta, Ohio, his old home. "Captain Hissong," writes an officer, "was universally liked by all who came in contact with him."

She was returning from South River, near Annapolis, on Dec. 11 in a machine owned and driven by Lieut. Comdr. Charles K. Osborne, U.S.N., when the car skidded, a wheel broke and the auto turned completely over, injuring both occupants. Commander Osborne is still in the naval hospital.

CRISSEY FIELD.

Crissey Field, Calif., Jan. 4, 1922.
The 49ers held sway at the Officers' Club on December 31, and some did not make their way home until long after the light of day on Jan. 1. Activities started with a buffet supper, and from then on—well, they did a lot of things the 49ers never heard about. The costumes were varied. Included among them were the sheriff, parson, Chinaman, Indian, Spaniard, gambler, and a few from Hell's Kitchen, to say nothing of an occasional Quaker or Puritan maid. All agreed that it was "good party" and hope for repetition in the near future.

Crissey Field was visited by a real storm the past week and considerable damage was done about the post. Not a few of us recalled the storm at Gerstner Field in August, 1918, but fortunately it was not even a near repetition, although the wind reached a high velocity.

Major George H. Breit, commanding officer of Crissey Field, Lieut. Warren A. Maxwell and Col. Hanna, M.C., enjoyed the holidays as duck hunters. Lieut. H. A. Halverson joined the party before its return.

Medical Service in Modern War

An exposition of the tactical functions of the Medical Department in Campaign

By Lieutenant Colonels F. S. BOND and
C. F. MARTIN

With an Introduction by Major-General M. W. IRELAND,
Surgeon General, U.S. Army

This is a new and up-to-date study of the manner in which human life or "man power" is conserved in time of war. It is an exposition of the successful methods developed by the U. S. Army in the World War, in both open and stabilized warfare.

The Medical Department is not alone a humanitarian service to ease the sufferings of war, but a mighty offensive weapon which hurls against the enemy hundreds of thousands of able-bodied fighting men, who without its unremitting labors would be linguishing in hospitals or convalescent camps or in their graves. Lacking an active and efficient sanitary service, the largest, most valiant and best equipped army would soon melt away from exposure, wounds and disease.

The Medical Department is thus one of the important combatant arms of the service, and fights in the very fore-front of battle.

The subject is treated from this point of view. It gives the practical application of the arts of medicine, surgery and sanitation to the needs of warfare.

The Association of Army and Navy Stores will be pleased to receive applications from a number of former Officers, from men who know they are salesmen, with a view to possible appointments as State Managers.

The applications must be in writing and the applicants must state in detail both their business and Service experiences. They should also furnish references.

Those that qualify will be invited to come to New York for a conference. If appointed, these selected will have to undergo a period of intensive training for the work, during which time they will have an opportunity to demonstrate their productive ability.

The work is on a commission basis, the income can be as large as the man wishes. The possibilities are almost unlimited.

Unless you are a real executive, not easily discouraged, know how to train and build up an organization, and ambitious to do something big, it would be useless for you to reply to this advertisement, but if you have ability and the determination to succeed, a most unusual opportunity is now open to you. Address your communication to General Manager, Association of Army and Navy Stores, Inc., 505 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

CHRISTMAS AT CAMP FURLONG

Columbus, N.M., Jan. 2, 1922.

Columbus, the town made famous by Pancho Villa, may have had many and many a merry Christmas, but we, of Camp Furlong, doubt if there ever was a merrier Christmas for the 24th Infantry and the officers of Camp Furlong and Camp Shannon than that of 1921.

The first event on our Christmas program was an entertainment and Christmas tree for the enlisted men and their families in the new Service Club on Christmas eve. This program was well arranged by Chaplain Thomas. Colonel Schoeffel, the regimental commander, representing Santa Claus, came down the chimney and gave to each child a gift. Three tables loaded with gifts had been placed in the wings and it was with difficulty that Santa finished this distribution in time to be present and act in the same rôle at the officers' Christmas tree.

The officers' entertainment opened at 6:45 p.m., with a song by the children and a duet on the piano by Lalla Rookh and Zelma Selbie. The minuet was presented by Mollie Caffey and Lalla Rookh Selbie, daughters of Colonel Caffey and Major Selbie, respectively. Santa Claus came down the chimney and joined the children, who put on a special number for his entertainment. Presents for all, old and young, were then distributed.

Colonel Schoeffel as himself escorted all to an adjoining dining room beautifully decorated and there before us was a horseshoe-shaped table with covers laid for sixty persons. For the space of one hour and thirty minutes we went back again to the good old days of the "Old Army" and lived in the realms of Christmases past, the pleasure of Christmas present and the hopes of Christmases yet to come. Each place-card contained a verse or limerick of what the regiment (or at least the committee who prepared the cards) thought of the officer or the lady of the camp, and during the dinner these cards were passed to another person, who read them to the assembled party.

Just before the dinner's close Colonel

Schoeffel spoke on the object of yearly Christmas dinners; his desire to resurrect and perpetuate the old-time customs and traditions in the Service, and last but not least to cement the bond of friendship of his regimental family. His remarks brought forth continuous applause, but he interrupted us by reminding us that the evening was yet young and that the Regimental Officers' Club had its doors wide open, entreating us to join the Christmas eve dance.

The success of this affair is due to the activities of Col. and Mrs. John H. Schoeffel, who have worked untiringly toward making it a part of the "early social program; Lieut. Col. and Mrs. L. O. Caffey, of the executive committee; Mrs. T. F. Breenahan and Miss Downing, of the entertainment committee; Mrs. W. G. Muller, of the dinner committee; Mrs. R. B. Hill, of the decoration committee, and the ladies of the various above committees.

The following were present: Col. and Mrs. Schoeffel, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. L. O. Caffey, Majors and Mrs. R. M. Hill and J. K. Miller, Capt. and Mrs. W. G. Muller, T. F. Breenahan, F. P. Tuohy, R. D. Daugherty, M. C. Penta, W. J. R. Akeroyd, M. E. Holman, M. E. Jones, I. W. Crawford, H. W. Mason, H. C. Johannes, Lieut. and Mrs. E. C. Maling, A. C. Wight and R. J. Caperton.

NOTED

THERE are a few names that stand out prominently in the long list of privately manufactured items of military and naval equipment.

The mention of any one of these names brings to mind a distinct recollection of meritorious service in a particular field and in addition a degree of quality above and beyond that required to meet certain acceptance standards.

The fact that "Mack" is one of these names is a source of no small amount of gratification to the manufacturers of this, the Bulldog motor truck.

CAMP BRAGG.

Camp Bragg, N.C., Jan. 2, 1922.

New Year's Eve was celebrated in Mardi Gras fashion at the officers' club, the dance floor being taxed to capacity with officers and ladies of the post and their guests. Some unique masks and costumes were noticed, several members of the Camp Bragg family defying recognition until the hour of twelve was struck and all unmasked. At the last stroke the lights were extinguished and a spotlight played upon the stage, where a woodland scene was disclosed. Father Time, excellently played by Major E. S. Van Deusen, entered and sadly reviewed his troubles of the past twelvemonth. His discourse was interrupted by the dashing entry of young 1922, coyly impersonated by Capt. W. R. Philip. Miss Elizabeth Waring, of Columbia, S.C., was a house guest of Capt. and Mrs. Buhl Moore over the holidays.
